DEAR GARY:

GARY THERE

LIKE I SAID LAST SUMMER, YOU ARE ONE OF
MY BEST FRIENDS. YOU ALWAYS WILL BE. I WISH
WE COULD HAVE DONE MORE "STUFF" WITH THE "GANG" THIS YEAR. BUT THE MEMORIES
OF LAST YEAR ARE STILL GREAT. TELL YOUR
MOM AND DAD HELLO. CAUSE I LOVE EM
ALOT. ALWAYS REMEMBER NIXON'S CLASS,
FALCONS, DENNY'S, GOOD TIMES EVEN SOME OF THE BAD. (OF WHICH THERE'S BEEN FEW)
"IT'S BEEN FUN, LOVE YOU ALOT ALWAYS.

Staff works hard

Organization is a big part of running a school and so is servicing the needs of students. Two groups of people essential in making the school what it is are the administrators and the counselors.

Mr. James Scott, principal, who has been involved in public education for over twenty years, commented, "This was the best year I've ever had as an administrator." Ms. Karin Cathey and Mr. Ed Rosin, vice-principals, and Ms. Marian Sulenes, business manager, completed the administrative staff.

The counselors are also very important people, providing services for students who need them. The counseling center had many books, pamphlets, audio-visual aids and catalogues which helped students plan their futures.

Counselor Fred Freeburg said, "I could be real honest and say that we probably have the best counseling program in the state. We have four top-notch counselors who know their job and do it well." Mr. Mike Ritch, Mr. Ted Kirchhoff and Ms. Maja Gowan were also on the counseling staff.

1. Mr. James Scott, principal, feels good about the year as he pauses during another busy day.
2. Glancing up from her work in the office is Ms. Marian Sulenes, business manager.
3. Posed with a problem, Counselor Mike Ritch finds himself in deep thought.
4. Mr. Ed Rosin, vice-principal, takes time out for a quick picture.
5. Ms. Karin Cathey, vice-principal, stands reflecting upon the past year's achievements.
6. Feeling good about his work and the fine counseling center is Mr. Fred Freeburg.
7. Ms. Karen Pinnick, the counselors' secretary, helps keep the center running smoothly.
8. Mr. Ted Kirchhoff, counselor, takes a breather between appointments and gives a student a smile.
9. New to the counseling staff is Ms. Maja Gowan, who is pleased with her new job.

Secretaries strive for high efficiency

Few students sit down and talk with a school secretary as they would with a teacher, but if you did you would find that these women are very interesting and are ready to help whenever asked to.

Each of the secretaries had a distinct job which helped to make the school year run as smoothly as possible. The "front office" secretaries handled the administrative paper work, communications with people from the community, student appointments with the principal and vice-principals, and preparation of special teacher materials.

The "rear office" secretaries usually had a much more direct student contact than did the ladies in the main office. They had such duties as handling student body accounts, attendance enforcement, keeping student records and school budgeting.

A new feature added to the office area this year was the window next to Ms. Miriam Yanoff's desk. According to Ms. Yanoff, this provided a more efficient system for the many money transactions that took place almost everyday.

Business Manager, Ms. Marian Sulenes, said the main goal of the secretary staff was to provide maximum service with minimum effort. This is a tough goal for anyone to accomplish, but most will agree that the secretaries did an excellent job.

1. Ms. Donna Carkeek, whose familiar voice gave students the morning sports news, checks over the day's announcements.
2. Ms. Ruth Condello looks up after typing a stencil for a member of the science department.
3. Ms. Elsie Galloway smiles at a passing student whom she knows should be in class.
4. Ms. Sylvia Breshears greets some local businessmen wishing to speak to Mr. Scott.
5. Ms. Fran Troje comes out of her office to talk to a student about a schedule change.
6. Ms. Miriam Yanoff pauses after selling tickets to an away football game.
7. Ms. Barbara Phalen, nurse, is surprised at some of the new illnesses brought to her by Newport students.

Enthusiasm shown by the Class of '79

The old belief that the sophomore class doesn't get involved was proved false by the Class of '79.

"They were a super class," said Mr. Dan Holden, advisor. The activities that went on were supported by the sophomores and much enthusiasm was shown at all times, especially at the pep assemblies.

Looking back, the year started early for many of the girls with the little sister-big sister orientation picnic sponsored by Camelot Club. The annual sophomore study hall orientation also went on, where many of the important items were covered, such as the handing out of library cards, rules and regulations, and all important class elections.

"It's difficult to vote for someone to be your class representatives, especially when you don't know them," said President Kirk Parce. "We plan to change this into the most organized and best sophomore class Newport's ever had." Vice-president Cheryl Reible commented, "Our goal is to unite the two basic junior highs into one and by the time we get to be seniors, have enough funds to do and plan anything we want."

Science Department adds a new class

Through the year the Science Department strived to expand the student's knowledge of content and process in the science field. This goal was continually stressed by the eight members of the Science Department.

The program ranges from Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, to more specific areas of study, such as Ecology and Animal Behavior. "We have one of the finest science programs in the country," commented Mr. Denis DuBois, department chairperson.

Controversial Issues In Science was the newest course offered by the department. It examined important issues, such as the environment, genetics, cities, the automobile and issues decided upon by the students.

1. Mr. Denis DuBois smiles as he listens to one of his students presentations during biology class.
2. Mr. Mark Peterson laughs at a response made by a biology student during a class discussion.
3. Ms. Joan Davis helps a biology student in need find the answers to important questions.
4. Mr. Ed Ramey points out an equation essential to his chemistry students during a lecture.
5. Mr. Don Perry watches over his Physics class as they perform a vital experiment.

Experience found in English 10

Sophomore English is experiencing and expressing, exploring and evaluating and most of all studying in depth pieces of Literature to find out what makes them tick.

Reading, writing and enjoying literature were all part of English 10 this year. Getting students involved in well-known authors and poets was the department's top priority. "Giving the students a good background in literature was one of our major concerns," commented Ms. Kim Anthony, English Department chairperson.

Everybody has room for improvement. This was the way the Reading Department felt about their programs. As one alternative the department offered Practical Reading, a class which included reading comprehension, filling out job applications, and learning basic skills. The department also offered Advanced Reading and Developmental Reading. These classes taught students to read more rapidly, to skim material and to remember ideas instead of words. These classes also offered students the opportunity to increase the effectiveness of their reading.

1. Ms. Edna Burns chuckles at a private joke she shares with a student in her Reading Improvement class.

2. Ms. Louise Lowry laughs at one of her Sophomore English student's explanations.

3. Smiling with understanding, Mr. Irwin Sammeth listens to a story one of his Advanced reading students wrote.

4. Only half convinced, Ms. Tia Kinnear accepts one of her Sophomore English Student's excuses.

5. Ms. Donna Hughes glances up from her book to answer one of her student's questions about grammar.

Students aware of potential hazards

How many times have you driven down the road, seen a car marked "Driver Education" and swerved to the other side of the road trying to avoid the young, inexperienced drivers? If you have, they are probably students enrolled in the traffic safety program.

For most underclassmen, one of their most popular courses was Traffic Safety. The students knew exactly what was going to be taught and most worked very hard to accomplish their one main goal: a driver's license.

The Traffic Safety program is a very structured one. There are a certain number of hours that must be spent in each of the three areas of the course: driving, where the actual on-the-road training is done; simulation where the student uses a machine designed to make the driver aware of the things around him; and classroom sessions, where the rules and regulations of the road are learned. If these minimums are not met the student doesn't pass.

Junior Julie Harshbarger feels that since she has taken the class her attitudes have changed, making her more aware of the dangers of driving.

1. Sophomore Barbie Koenig learns the fundamentals of football at a powderpuff practice.
2. Mr. Mick DiRe is in shock as he returns from a driving session.
3. Mr. Darren Sipe looks surprised at some of the answers he gets in his Traffic Safety class.
4. Mr. Larry Hitchcock ponders an interesting question raised by one of his students.

Gym helps develop skill along with fun

Developing skills, doing your own thing, and having fun seemed to be the major concerns of the P.E. Department. Physical Education was an individual type of experience, geared for both the "super athlete" and the person who takes the course because he is required to.

"Our primary objective was for self-enjoyment," commented Ms. Kathy Hutton. The department was always trying to fulfill the wishes of the student body by offering classes that the majority requested.

Gymnasium Speedball, a new course taught this year, had something unique to offer. This sport, which is usually played outdoors, has now been modified to accommodate the size of the Gym. "As far as we know, the idea of using the Gym originated here at Newport," reported Mr. Bill Bloomer.

1. Home run hitter, Senior Robin Osmundson, takes a swing at the ball before engaging in a game of baseball.
2. Sophomore John Rogers leisurely runs the track while warming up for his P.E. class.
3. Julie Webb, sophomore, an A-1 pitcher, tosses the ball to one of her teammates during a practice game.

Calculators added for new dimension

Calculate the number of times you have had problems with your math. Quite a few times, right? The Math Department would like to change this. One helpful continuation was the Math Center that was relocated in the 200 Wing. The Math Center was staffed by Mr. Bill MacKenney, who spends his time helping math students with questions and difficult problems.

A computer terminal was added in the Business Wing, which was used by the Math Department to teach calculus students the concepts of computer programming. Mr. Earle Smith said, "We are trying to work our math program into something relating to programming computers." A course in programming is being considered by the math teachers for the future.

A set of class calculators was also added for the department. "Calculators are almost as inexpensive as books," commented Mr. Smith. The staff urged students to get into calculators as much as possible since they make learning much easier.

1. Mr. Jim Schulz, the newest addition to the Math Department, laughs at a comment made by one of his Algebra 1 students.
2. While working in his office, Mr. Earle Smith is startled by the unexpected visit from the cameraman.
3. Pausing from his daily routine of assisting students, Mr. Bill MacKenney looks up to greet visitors to the Math Center.
4. Mr. Davis Vail, Comp Skills chairperson, checks over test papers for one of his Algebra 3 classes.
5. Mr. Dick Singletary chats with ease in the Math office, while on his lunchbreak, with a confused student.

Library and Media areas side by side

Beep! Beep! Beep! You or someone around you has a book that has just set off the electronic book detector and the exit gate has been locked. Since the library has had the book detector the librarians have not had as major a problem with missing books as they have had experienced in the past.

When the remodeled library first opened the shelves were arranged in a sun burst, which was creative, but it made it difficult to find a book. When the students returned to school after the summer of '76 the shelves were arranged in horizontal rows, which makes it easier to find a book. According to Ms. Fran Apetz, librarian, new materials are coming in constantly. Old magazines were given to the school by various people of the community. Different kinds of books, including pleasure and reference works, were also arriving all the time.

At all times there were librarians to help students with any questions they might have had about the library or how to use it.

According to Ms. Virginia Peterson, "We have the best Media Center in the district." Students may enjoy the special privilege of viewing different shows on video tape in the Media Center or by closed circuit TV during lunches in the Student Commons.

1. Caught smiling after watching a movie that ended happily, is Ms. Virginia Peterson.
2. Ms. June Wehrwein is straightening some books after students have just milled through them.
3. In a helpful spirit, Ms. Fran Apetz assists someone with their work.
4. Ms. Marnie Annin is snickering as we snuck up on her and snapped a picture.

Drama/Speech is a creative outlet

Have you ever wanted to see your name up in lights? Do you lack the confidence needed to get up and speak in front of people? Then the Speech/Drama Department is the place for you.

The goal of the basic speech class was to give students the confidence to be comfortable enough to speak in front of a group of people. Mr. Bill Eyman said, "Hopefully, students will gain confidence to get up and express themselves in a pressured situation."

In addition to this basic course, the department offered a Speech II class during second semester. This advanced class was designed to let students pursue their interests in public speaking on a non-competitive level.

In the area of Theater Arts the department offered a beginning acting class, which taught basic acting techniques, and an advanced acting class, for students choosing to pursue their interests in this area. Another popular class was the Theatre Productions, or "Tech" class, which constructed all necessary sets for dramatic productions at school.

Another vital part of the Speech/Drama Department was the debate and competitive speech program.

Dealing with people and learning what they are all about was one of the main goals of this relaxed and informal department.

1. Mr. Bill Eyman appears to be amused as one of his acting students performs for the first time.
2. Mr. John Scannell is pleased by the innovative speeches presented by students in his beginning speech class.

Business Ed will put you to work

Making preparations for college easier, along with teaching students basic job skills and finding a job in the business world were among the goals of the Business Education Department.

A great asset to the department for the last two years was the audio visual library, which helped teach students what they wanted to learn through a self-help program.

A new class this year was Data Processing. "This course was offered to train students how to use the machines in data processing and also the benefits of them," commented Mr. Allen Dormaier, Business Department chairperson.

The major goals of the department, as explained by Mr. Dormaier, were to teach students in the skill areas of their choice, so when they graduate they will have the work experience, and also to prepare college-bound students to develop skills in typing, short hand, and business machines, law and communications.

1. Mr. Frank Herzog teaches students to type and manage their money in the world of business in his typing and personal finance classes.
2. Ms. Nadine Engh, new to the business Department this year, teaches beginning typing and advanced typing.
3. Mr. Bob Lavery teaches students about the business world and the laws in and around it.
4. Ms. Ginger Anderson finds students to fit jobs through the Diversified Occupations program.
5. Mr. Walt Haeck teaches students to write faster by taking a course in shorthand.
6. Mr. Allen Dormaier teaches business art through the graphics class, and also office practice and cooperative offices.

Juniors are spirit

Being a junior isn't an easy chore. You're not an inexperienced sophomore anymore, but you're not yet a superior senior either.

The Junior Class showed its enthusiasm throughout the year by sponsoring many worthwhile money-making projects. Class members began working last summer by putting on a successful car wash. One of the class' major projects, which was held during the school year, included the idea of "Hick Day," which was held last fall. As a part of this day juniors set up a country store in the NASB Office, sponsored a dance with the band Bad Boy providing the music, and sold baked potatoes at the football game that night. Also included under the category of money-making was the sale of football and basketball programs, and the sponsoring of a night with the Seattle Sounders.

"There weren't as many people as we'd hoped to watch the Sounders, but everyone seemed to have a good time," commented Susan Hamilton, junior class president.

2. Junior Larry Chu decides to take a breather between questions in his physics class.
3. Juniors Ken Burnett, Gary Taller, Cari Fujii, Jon Griep and Brian King get ready to leave Newport Hills swimming pool.
4. Junior Bruce Richards stands by the radiators between classes waiting for his friends.
5. Junior Class Officers: Historian Mary Beam, Treasurer Tricia Reeb, Vice-President Michael Davis, President Susan Hamilton, and Secretary Karen Edwards.

Students experience different cultures

"Parlez-vous francais?" "Hablas espanol?" Or perhaps "Sprechen Sie deutsch?" Many students thought a lot of their future when they first entered high school. Travel is an interesting thought, but you must first know a little of the language to survive. Picture yourself in the middle of a busy street in Paris, France knowing only the words for 'Yes,' and 'No.' How would you get along? Or imagine yourself in a taxi in downtown Mexico City, directing the driver to your hotel.

The Foreign Language Department prepares students to handle situations like these. Mr. Lyle Nichols, department chairperson, stated that the main objective for teaching a foreign language is to get the students acquainted with the culture of the country, along with becoming familiar with the language itself.

Some changes were evident in the 400 Wing throughout the year. Mr. Dwaine Hatch taught full-time German instead of having P.E. classes, and the department acquired a new Language Resource Center during remodeling, where students could find help with assignments.

In the future many students will be glad that they took a foreign language in high school.

Home Ec means more than cooking

Walking down the hall it wouldn't seem surprising if you felt the sudden urge to turn down the Home Ec wing to see what's cooking.

The Home Ec courses involve more than just cooking. There are also such courses as Exploring Childhood, where students are given the opportunity to work with children at their pre-schools; Interior Design, having students work mainly on designing their own houses; Bachelor Survival, which gives the students the opportunity to prepare themselves for single life; and Clothing, where students are given the chance to sew and create their own clothes.

All Home Ec courses are electives and almost all students are there because they want to be.

1. Home Ec. is one of the best classes to catch up on the latest gossip.
2. Although she teaches only one class, Ms. Nancy St. George still enjoys the students here at Newport.
3. Ms. Jackie Davidson gives an approving smile to one of her clothing students creations.
4. Flashing a big smile, Ms. Kathy Montgomery enjoys her Exploring Childhood class.

Music unlocks doors

"You can make music a business, or you can make it fun." One of the main objectives of the Music Department is to help students enjoy their musical talents.

"Each person has the talent, but sometimes it is buried deep inside," says Choir Director George Harshbarger. "It is my job to help the student discover and unlock in himself what is already there, and help him make use of it."

Classes offered can accommodate almost every musical ability or skill. For students who play instruments or sing, Band, Stageband, Orchestra and Choir are offered. Vocal students also have the opportunity to be chosen for two ensembles, Knight Sounds and Newport Singers.

There are still other ways to become involved in music if you don't play an instrument or sing. If you would like to play guitar, beginning and advanced guitar classes are offered. Students who wish to learn piano can take class piano. For a general musical background there is a music theory class.

According to Band Director Robert Bailey, "We are here to help the students develop a skill, and to teach them how to use it."

1. and 2. Practice rooms in the Music Wing are open to all people who wish to take advantage of their free time by furthering their musical abilities.

3. Beginning and advanced guitar are some of the many classes offered by the Music Department.

4. Choir Director George Harshbarger just completed his first year of teaching at Newport.

Shop classes vary

Having one of the best equipped woodworking and metal working shops, in not only the Bellevue district, but in the Pacific Northwest, is one of the major assets of the Industrial Education Department, say the instructors.

The department has increased its capabilities in training students in the use of tools, processes, products and occupations of industry this year. This was helped by the return of Mr. Richard Robinson to the vocational carpentry area and the addition of Mr. Dave Stark to the woods and drafting areas.

Mr. Hugh Cheeseman again offered many classes in metal working, welding, foundry and machine shop. The welding program was improved with the addition of some new equipment for advanced welding practice, according to Mr. Cheeseman.

Power mechanics classes gave both sexes the opportunities to study the different forms of power and to learn to repair and maintain small gasoline engines and properly maintain and tune-up their automobiles.

Senior Mimi Brick, one of the few girls in power mechanics said, "The only bad part about being a girl in there is that when you ask a question because you don't understand, the guys laugh at you for asking what they consider to be a stupid question." But she also said it was a good class to learn in.

"You won't know if you like it until you've been exposed to it," commented Mr. Cheeseman.

History can be a great experience

Understanding yourself and the world around you is an important part of the growing process. The Social Studies Department felt this was its main goal for each student to achieve.

By the use of knowledge from class, many students got involved in the outside world by volunteering their time to such organizations as Neighborhood House and Special Aids Service Club, two very worthwhile organizations.

The State of Washington also requires each student to take five semesters of social studies, while the Bellevue School District requires seven. There were many controversies about changing the number of requirements and which classes should be taken during a certain year. Mr. Jim Lockerbie feels that Contemporary World Affairs is an important class and should be required. He commented that; "Such courses are demanding, but what the student wants is not necessarily what the student needs."

We are all encouraged to show more interest and get more involved in our changing world through our experience with social studies.

1. Mr. Bruno Pierini, chairperson of the Social Studies Department, usually has many thought-provoking ideas to offer his students.
2. Mr. Gene Paterson is happy with the results of his students' participation in an important class project in American Government.
3. Mr. Ralph Hayes often participates in serious conversations with his Canada class.
4. Mr. Ken Beall enjoys telling his Mobility class about his many world travels.
5. Ms. Jo Pharr listens to a student's comment on the philosophy of group pressures.
6. Mr. Jim Lockerbie argues over issues with one of his U.S. World classes.
7. Mr. Alan Yanagimachi, a new member of the Social Studies Department, returns test papers to his second period students.
8. Ms. Heidi Habersetzer is very helpful to students when they are looking for materials in the SSRC.

Changes seen in Jr/Sr English

Change was one word juniors encountered as they began study in the Junior/Senior English program. As sophomores, students heard about such things as in-units and out-units, and changing teachers every three weeks. But they found out this year's program was different.

Independent English was also dropped from the senior curriculum because of larger classes and an added class for all Junior/Senior English teachers.

The English Department hoped to create an interesting and appealing program for juniors and seniors, and to agree on a revised curriculum. It also was designed so the students worked more independently, accomplishing more tasks on their own, therefore achieving greater self-satisfaction.

1. Junior Carol Howe actively voices her opinion during a discussion in her Junior/Senior English class.
2. Ms. Alice Briant takes time out from her busy schedule in the English Resource Center to smile for the photographer.
3. Ms. Kim Anthony, English Department chairperson, often finds her class discussions very amusing.
4. Dr. Fred Meitzer takes a short breather after watching a feature-length film with his Film Study class.

Students learn to experience art

The Art Department introduces students to a variety of art forms and enables them to explore and enlarge their creativity. The students then can become aware of what art is, and experience it.

Every student has his own way of expressing himself through art and photography. The trend of the art class was dominated by the ideas formulated by the students. Mr. John Grove commented, "Art experiences have the potential for deepening and expanding human experience." He added, "to the extent that we can be free enough and disciplined enough to experience art, our vision of what is and what can be is enriched."

The same trend of expressing oneself can also be found in the photography classes. Objectives of photography include quality, creativeness and interpretation. Mr. Greg Coy commented, "Photography is to see life through different eyes."

1. Mr. Greg Coy smiles impressively at a student's photo in his advanced photography class.
2. Mr. John Grove watches his students create works of art in one of his pottery classes.
3. Mr. Ron Ho admires a jewelry student's work in his jewelry design class.

SPORTS

Varsity still strong

"Out of Newport High came the red and gold men,
Nobody paid much attention to them.
But in the fall of '76 when they put on their duds,
Everybody shouted . . . watch those studs, watch those studs, watch
those studs!!"

The studs were also known as the Varsity Football Team. They ended the season with a 6-4 win-loss record and one of their biggest wins was against Interlake, 14-0. This game was extra special because the Knights were the only team to beat the Saints in four years.

Along with the special wins there were special awards. Voted team captains were Seniors Dave Allison and Tony Softli. Other awards went to Senior Michael Coates, most inspirational; Junior Ken Burnett, most improved; Senior Bill Jarvinen, best tackler; and Senior Grant Kenn and Junior Jim Richardson, outstanding managers.

Chosen for the King-Co conference by the coaches, first string were Senior Dave Allison, defensive tackle and Senior Cliff Pastornicky, defensive back. Senior Michael Coates was voted offensive back. Chosen for second string were Seniors Boyd Hartwig and Stan Sawhill as defensive backs. Honorable mentions went to Senior Scott Nebeker, guard; Senior Cliff Pastornicky, split-end; Senior Kelly Williamson, linebacker; Junior Mike Piha, lineman; and Senior Dick Crowley, defensive end.

Senior Dave Allison summed up the season by saying, "We all had high hopes going into the season. We had some let downs and made some mistakes, but we had fun, which was the main thing."

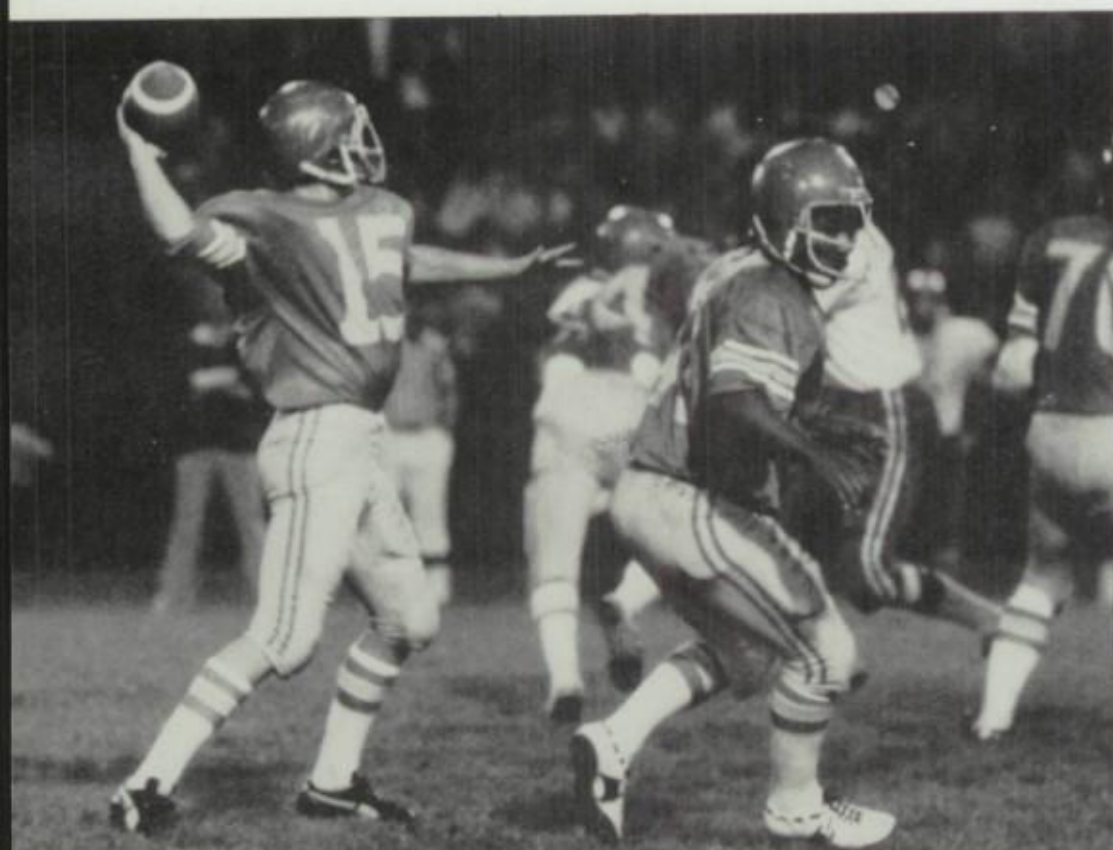

1. Head Coach Bill Bloomer and Offensive Line Coach John Fullerton discuss tactics with Quarterback Alan Best.
2. Defensive Back Coach Bob Albo and Defensive Coordinator Dwaine Hatch talk over defensive plays with Senior Jim Bailey.
3. Junior Eric Brooks scores a touchdown during the first game of the year against Renton.
4. The defensive team puts pressure on Inglemoor during the homecoming game.
5. The offensive line gets ready to strike during an away game against Sammamish.
6. Senior Cliff Pastornicky passes the ball as teammate Eric Brooks guards him.
7. Quarterback Alan Best pitches the ball to his left as teammate Tony Softli defends him.

Finish with a win

"We really enjoyed playing Franklin," said Head Coach Bill Bloomer. "It was a fun game." And so it seemed with the Knights on top 38-3 as the fog lifted at the end of the game.

There are usually ten games played in the regular season but due to scheduling difficulties, we had played only nine. The team wanted to play another game, preferably a Metro League team, so Coach Bloomer arranged the Franklin game.

This was a memorable game for Senior Stan Sawhill, as he kicked the longest field goal of his career and one of the longest in the state, at 51 yards.

1. The Defensive Team charges a Franklin Quarterback during the team's last game against Franklin.
2. The Defense takes Franklin by surprise during the game at Memorial Stadium.
3. Team member Craig Runnels watches a successful play performed by our defense.
4. Michael Coates out-maneuvers Franklin's defensive line during the final game of the season.
5. The defensive line proves to be too strong for Inglemoor during the homecoming game.
6. Jim Bailey holds the Inglemoor offensive line for no gain in the closing minutes of the game.
7. The football team charges onto the field looking for another victory of the season.
8. The team gets enthusiastic before the start of the Inglemoor game saying, "We're No. One".

JV is just a step away from varsity

Newport's Junior Varsity Football Team doesn't focus on its win-loss statistics, but on its philosophy: and that being, everybody gets to play. The goal is to get the sophomores and juniors ready for the varsity level and bring out the team spirit.

Coaching the team were Dan Holden and Mick DiRe. Also, both were Varsity coaches.

1. Junior Michael Davis does some fancy footwork around the opponents defense in hopes of bringing the ball all the way home.
2. Junior Michael Davis leads the Knights to a quick tackle against the Interlake Saints.
3. An unknown Knight gives his last attempt at the old "tie-the-shoelaces-together" trick.
4. Coach Dan Holden keeps a serious eye on the performance of his team during the attempt for a touchdown.
5. Junior Danny Linthicum brings the ball to a halt and has fun doing it.
6. Junior Tim Betts finds that it's not that easy to get to the other side of the field with the ball.

Sophomores have future in football

The goal of the Sophomore Football Team this year was to get the sophomores together to play as a team— something that hasn't been done for seven years. It apparently worked because the team had the best record in nine years, with a total of three wins and three losses.

Two of the best qualities the team had working in its favor was its willingness to work on its own and the ability to work harmoniously together, which is unusual, but necessary for any good team, according to Coach Mick DiRe.

Although the majority of players were average in physical size and speed, there were some quick linemen and good backs. Coach DiRe said that all adapted well to different positions, some of which the individuals had never played before.

Assistant Coach Dan Holden summed it all up by saying, "They were an outstanding group of individuals who enjoyed playing football."

1. Coach Dan Holden concentrates on the field where his Sophomore Football Team is in action.
2. Quarterback Mike Still hands the pigskin off to runningback Scott Murr.
3. As Mike Still prepares for a handoff, quarterback Scott Murr gets ready to gain yardage.
4. Crouched in starting positions, the sophomore football squad calls another play.
5. Runningback Scott Murr smashes through the opposition while teammate Mike Still looks on.
6. The sophomore football squad's offensive line charges head on into the opponent.

Large turnout for popular Golf Team

Fore!! This was the cry that was heard several times a week from the Sahalee Golf Course, as the Golf Team clubbed its way through tedious practice sessions.

Golf is a game that is increasing in popularity, as was shown by the enthusiasm of those who turned out. Miffy Fuller and Sherri Meyers were the only girls on the team and Coach Bill Green hopes to have more on the varsity squad next year.

Awards were given to Senior Randy Kelley for outstanding player, Junior Scott Wertman as most inspirational, and Sophomore Ron Romanick as most improved golfer.

Although the team placed sixth in the league with eight wins and six losses, Coach Green was pleased with the improvement over last year. "We had a large turnout this year," said Senior Tod Johnson, "but an up and down season."

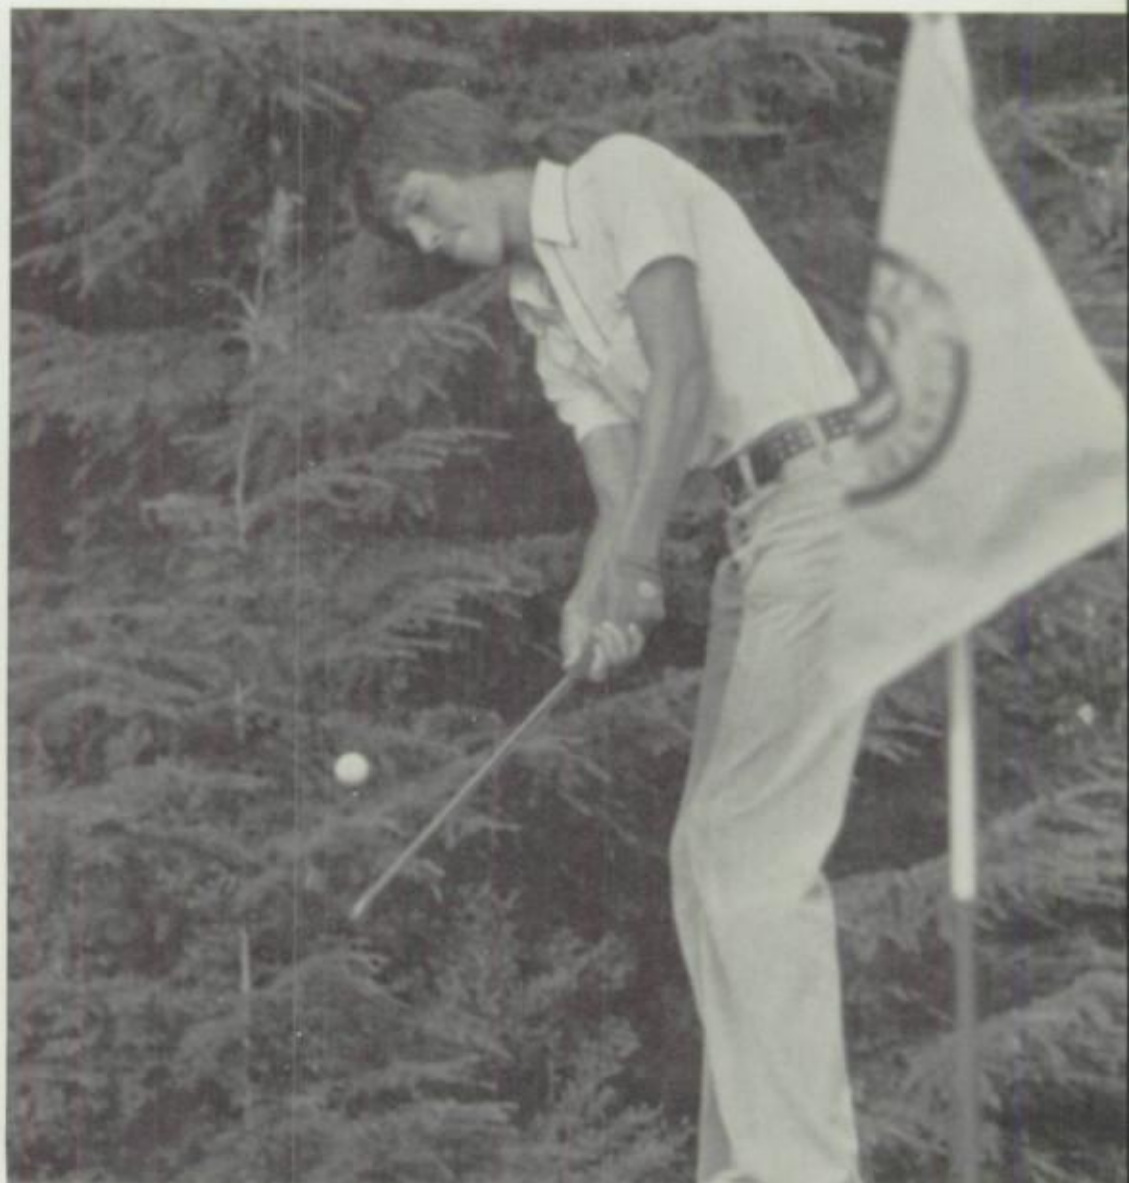

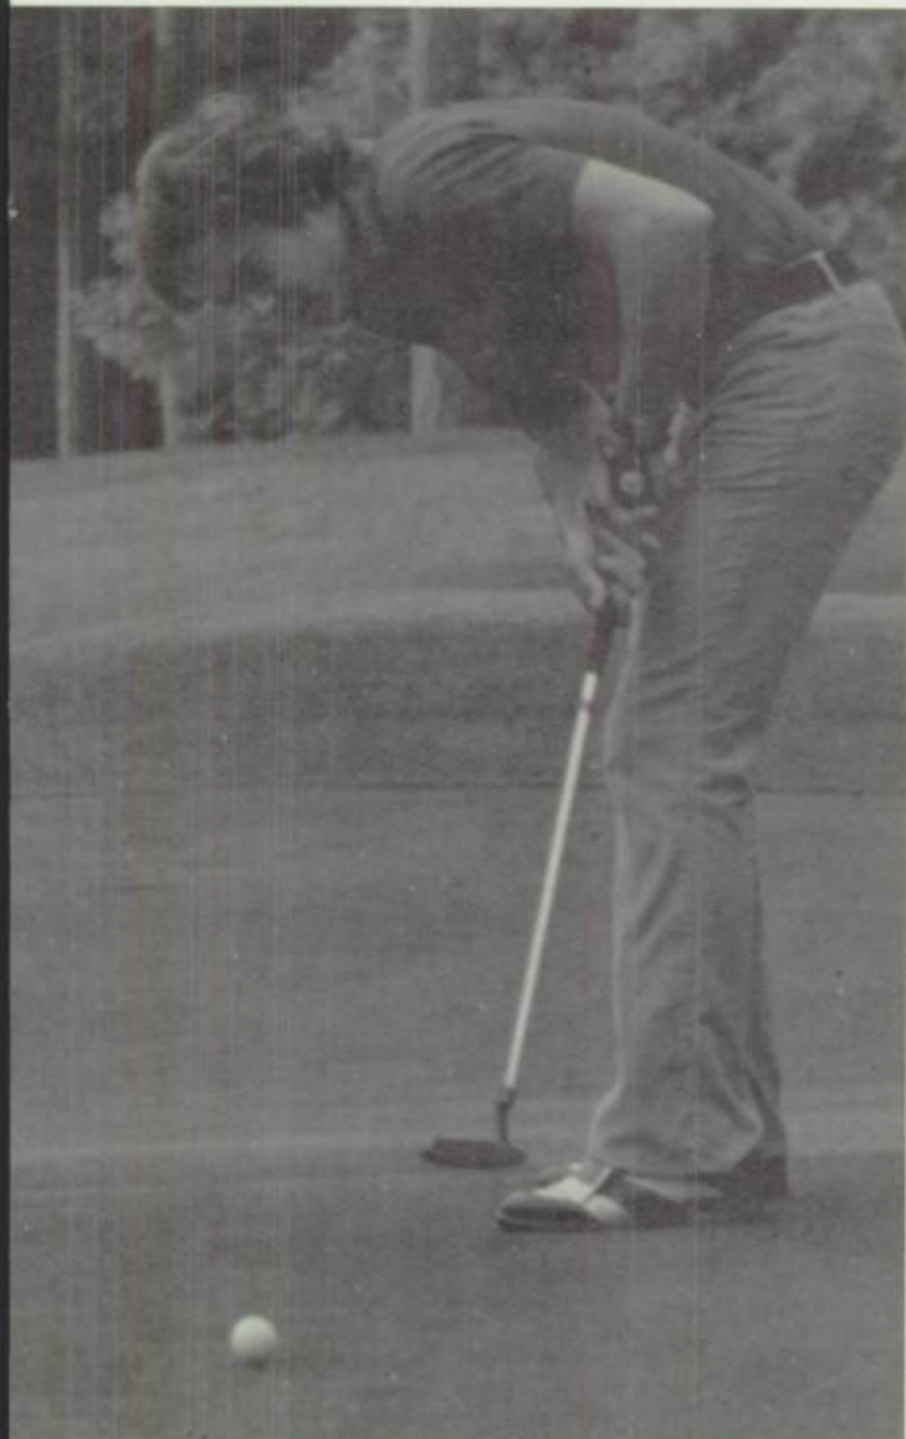

1. Senior Randy Kelley concentrates on the ball as he begins his down swing.
2. Sophomore Carl Rigney's face tightens up prior to hitting the ball.
3. Sophomore Ron Romanick displays his style as he prepares for the tee-off.
4. Other team members look on as Senior Doug Davison's ball sails into the air.
5. Kevin Keieleber, sophomore, chips the ball out of the apron to make par for the hole.
6. Brooks Berry, senior, practices his form of putting the ball on the green.
7. Senior Tod Johnson is determined to put the ball in the hole, as he chips from the rough.

Back to Number 1

The swim team got off to a slow start this year, but made a great comeback with hard work and determination. They lost their meet against Sammamish High School, which was disappointing because it was the first dual meet the swim team had ever lost. Jack Ridley, the coach, said, "I think we would have beaten Sammamish if we would have swam them later in the season."

This was the first year coaching the Knights for Coach Ridley. He had previously coached Olympic swimmer and NHS graduate Jo Harshbarger.

The team worked hard to qualify everyone for the State meet, due to the loss last year by three points. Nine swimmers and four divers from the team qualified.

Some of the outstanding achievements at the State meet included Evi Kosenkranius's national high school record in the five-hundred yard free style, and a victory in the two-hundred yard free style. Janie Smith also won the two-hundred yard individual medley at the State meet.

1. National record holder Evi Kosenkranius and Laurie Barker, both sophomores this year, rest for a moment in the pool.
2. The Girls' Swim Team gets ready to start early in the season at the meet against Interlake.
3. Sophomore Nancy Crowley works to perfect her breast stroke at a swim practice.
4. Junior Sarah Klosterman swims laps in hopes that it will help her time during a meet.
5. Junior Lori Wallace gets a good start swimming back stroke during a meet against Bellevue.
6. Jill Andrews, a freshman this year, works on her butterfly stroke at a practice.
7. The Girls' Swim Team spent many hard hours working, hoping for the chance to go to state.
8. A former Olympic Coach Jack Ridley, found time enough to coach two swim teams as well as individual students.

Runners must put in hours of work

Cross-Country is an extremely demanding sport. It takes determination, and success doesn't happen overnight. A runner may run ten miles during just one workout, or he might clock a distance such as the 440 somewhere between ten and twenty times. One team member commented that, "It may take guts to get there, but when you make it, it's worth it."

All the hard work, sweat and patience that went into developing the Girls' Cross-Country Team paid off this season. The team captured the King Co Division title for the second year in a row. "I was pleased with the turnout. We picked up a lot of good sophomores," stated Coach Dave Stark. The team was young, but it didn't miss out on anything as far as experience was concerned. Senior Brenda Reed and teammate Sophomore Michelle Carver were the team's exceptional runners.

Boys' Cross-Country wasn't quite as victorious as the girls' team. As the season came to a close it was seated in fifth place in King Co. "We didn't do quite as well as we'd hoped, but we have a highly competitive team and we expect to do well next year," commented Coach Stark. "We will be losing our top runner, Senior Chris Hudson, but there will be boys who'll be eligible to take his spot on the team," he concluded.

1. Aided by Senior Wanda Miles, Michelle Carver, sophomore, limbers up before a race.
2. Chris Hudson, senior, pushes a little harder in order to overtake his opponent.
3. Senior Brenda Reed experiences the loneliness of the long distance runner.
4. Seniors Chris Hudson and Doug Lehning fight for the lead against a Mercer Island runner.
5. Coach Dave Stark watches cross country practice with a critical eye.
6. Pleased with their times, Senior Brenda Reed and Sophomore Michelle Carver bask in their glory.

Boys add spike to Volleyball Team

Bump, set, spike and serve. To the members of the volleyball team this was their main vocabulary throughout the season, and by the looks of their win-loss record you could say they knew the vocabulary well.

"This year's team was a good one," commented Head Coach Ted Montgomery, "Perhaps the best we've ever had." A new addition to the team, due to the Title IX decision, was boys. Senior Dave Hoover was one of the boys who turned out. By his obvious physical advantage and his advanced technique, one would think he would be a one man team, but such was not the case.

"Dave handled his responsibilities very well," said Coach Montgomery. "He worked as a team member and was good at it. He in no way tried to take over or overpower anyone on the team."

The team's hard work and effort brought them to a season's end with a 10-3 record and a tie for second in King Co.

1. Head Coach Ted Montgomery explains some of the fundamentals of the sport.
2. Teammates and Assistant Coach Jim Murphy watch Sophomore Faye Eken set up the ball to begin an offensive play.
3. Known as one of the most spirited teams, they huddle up and get psyched for a match.
4. Senior Debbie Freed concentrates on the ball as it comes toward her.
5. Senior Christi Johnson unleashes a powerful serve in a match against Bothell.
6. Junior Jody McCarthy jumps up to spike the ball past some opposing players.
7. Senior Dave Hoover demonstrates his powerful spiking technique.
8. Senior Cheryl Neithercott shows winning form as she moves the ball forward from the backcourt.

Tennis is success

Success was the word to sum up the Girls' Tennis Team as it finished the season with a total of seven wins and two losses. This record was good enough for the team to place second, behind Mercer Island.

The strong doubles teams were led by Seniors Kim Gustafson and Julie Boris, followed by the team of Senior Sammi Piha and Sophomore Sue Rose. The third doubles team consisted of Senior Ann Pfeifer and Junior Sandy Simpkins.

Junior Marja Marshall, who was rated seventh in the state, led the team in singles competition. Sophomore Traci Cooke was placed second, followed by Sophomore Sue Hannah. The fourth singles position was shared by Seniors Gail Zachary and Beth McNamara.

Mr. Fran Drake, who had his first year coaching the team, commented, "We have a strong group returning next year. We hope more girls will turn out to increase our intersquad competition."

1. Traci Cooke, sophomore, lunges after a tennis ball placed near the net by her opponent.
2. Senior Sammi Piha contemplates her next move while looking through her tennis racket.
3. Backing away from the ball to return it is Kim Murray, sophomore, a member of the Junior Varsity Team.
4. With a determined look on her face, Senior Beth McNamara moves toward the oncoming ball.
5. Marja Marshall, junior, is caught off balance with a quick serve from the other side of the net.
6. A confident air about her and a good forehand go along with senior Julie Boris's serve.
7. Heading toward the ball, Junior Sandy Simpkins gets an audience of a fellow tennis player.
8. Kim Gustafson, senior, reacts quickly and quietly to a very unexpected fast moving ball.
9. Ann Pfeifer, senior, fools her opponent with a quick move and surprises her enough to score a point.

Water Polo places fifth in first year

It's not very often that a first year club will place in the top six in state competition, but this year's Water Polo Club accomplished this with flying colors.

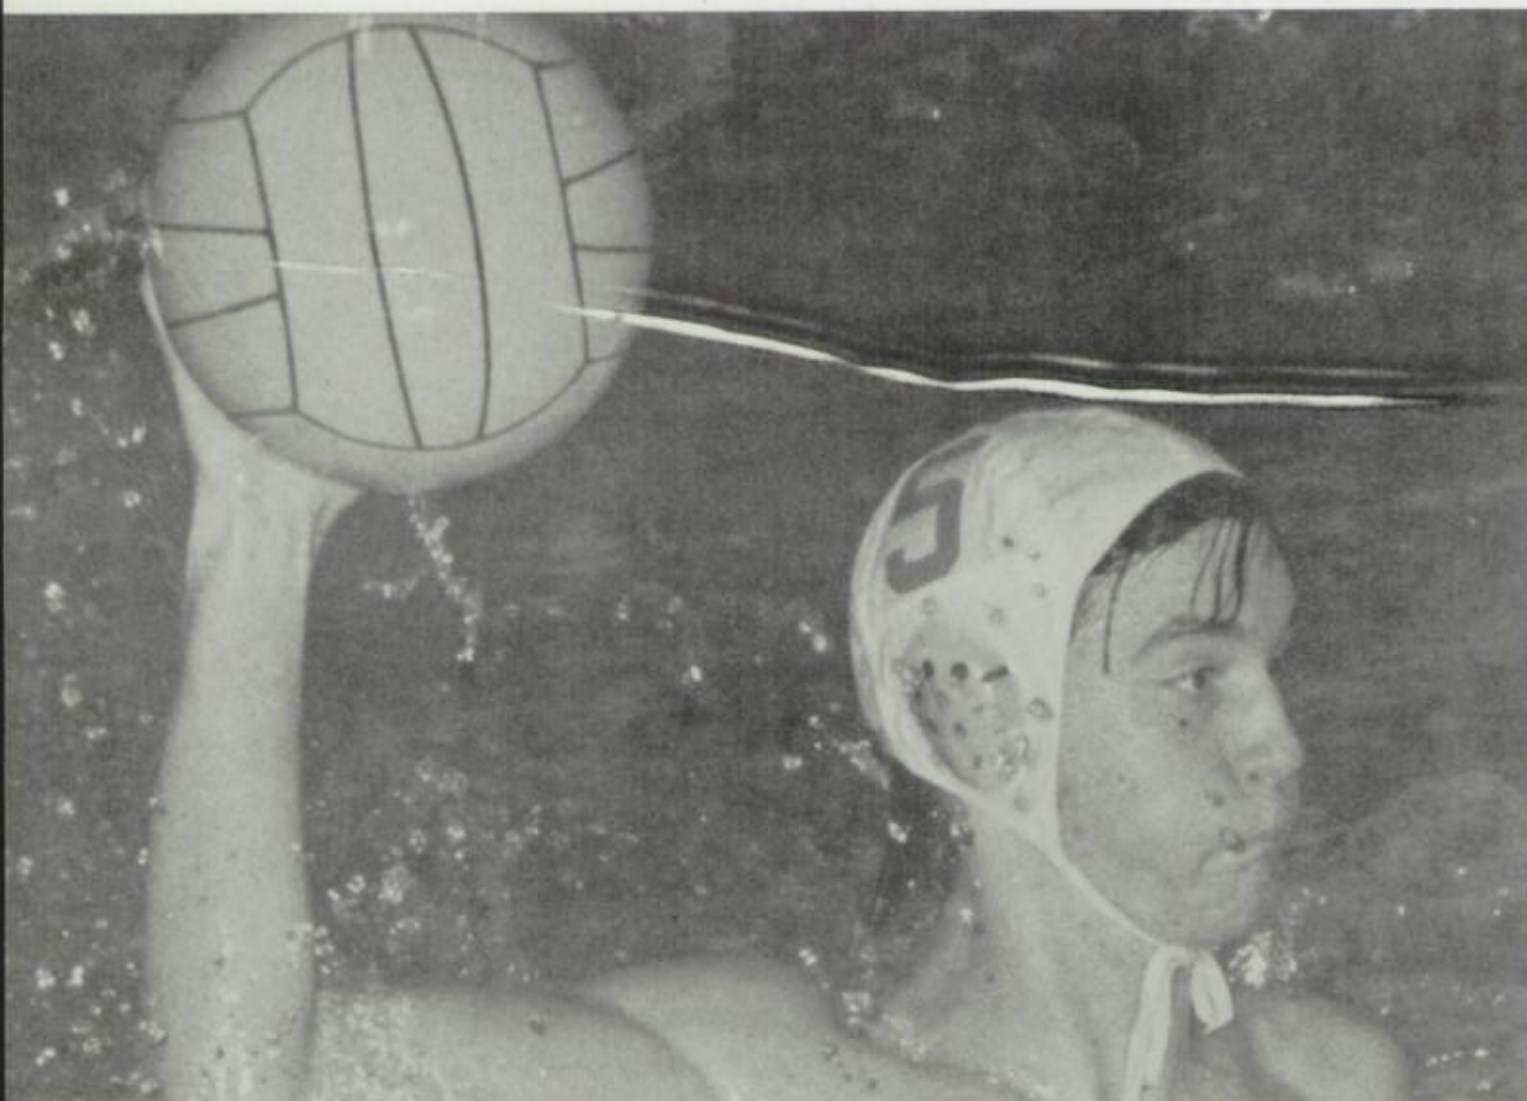

Every Saturday and Sunday morning Coach Paul Simmerly would gather his team to practice at the Newport Hills pool. They worked mainly on ball control, teamwork and endurance. Senior Dave Veith, co-captain, commented on the team's improvement, saying, "The team looked 100 percent better at the state tournament than at the beginning of the season."

To most of the guys on the team water polo is one of, if not their most favorite sport. "The team was formed for fun," said Senior Jerry Jaderholm, co-captain and coordinator. "We wanted to do well, but it wasn't the end of the world if we didn't."

The leading scorer in the state tournament was Senior Russ King, who compiled 13 goals during the three-day competition.

As a finale the team was the only one invited from Washington to play in a Canadian tournament held in West Minster in January.

1. Senior Russ King gets some instruction from Coach Paul Simmerly.
2. Junior Leo Kosenkranius swims around an opponent to hopefully receive a pass from a teammate.
3. "Let me out," says Junior Goalie Brian King after a long game.
4. Senior Jerry Jaderholm takes a shot in a game against Lakes of Tacoma.
5. Senior Gene Minnich blocks his man so a goal won't be made.
6. Senior Dave Veith, leading scorer for the season, passes the ball to a teammate.

Future looks good for the Knights

Newport's Varsity Basketball team was a renowned and respected team. Most of the teams in the league feared the Knights, according to Mr. Jim Murphy, assistant coach.

Hard work and compatibility were the hoopsters strongest weapons. If a team is without these important factors they don't even stand a chance of winning, and the boys' basketball team really had it together. "The team members were a really close-knit group of hard-working ball players," reflected Head Coach Fran Drake.

Coach Murphy was pleased with the effort the team put forth. "It's hard to single out a couple of outstanding players because the guys worked together as a team, not as individuals." As Coach Drake put it, "We had no stars, because all the kids starred together."

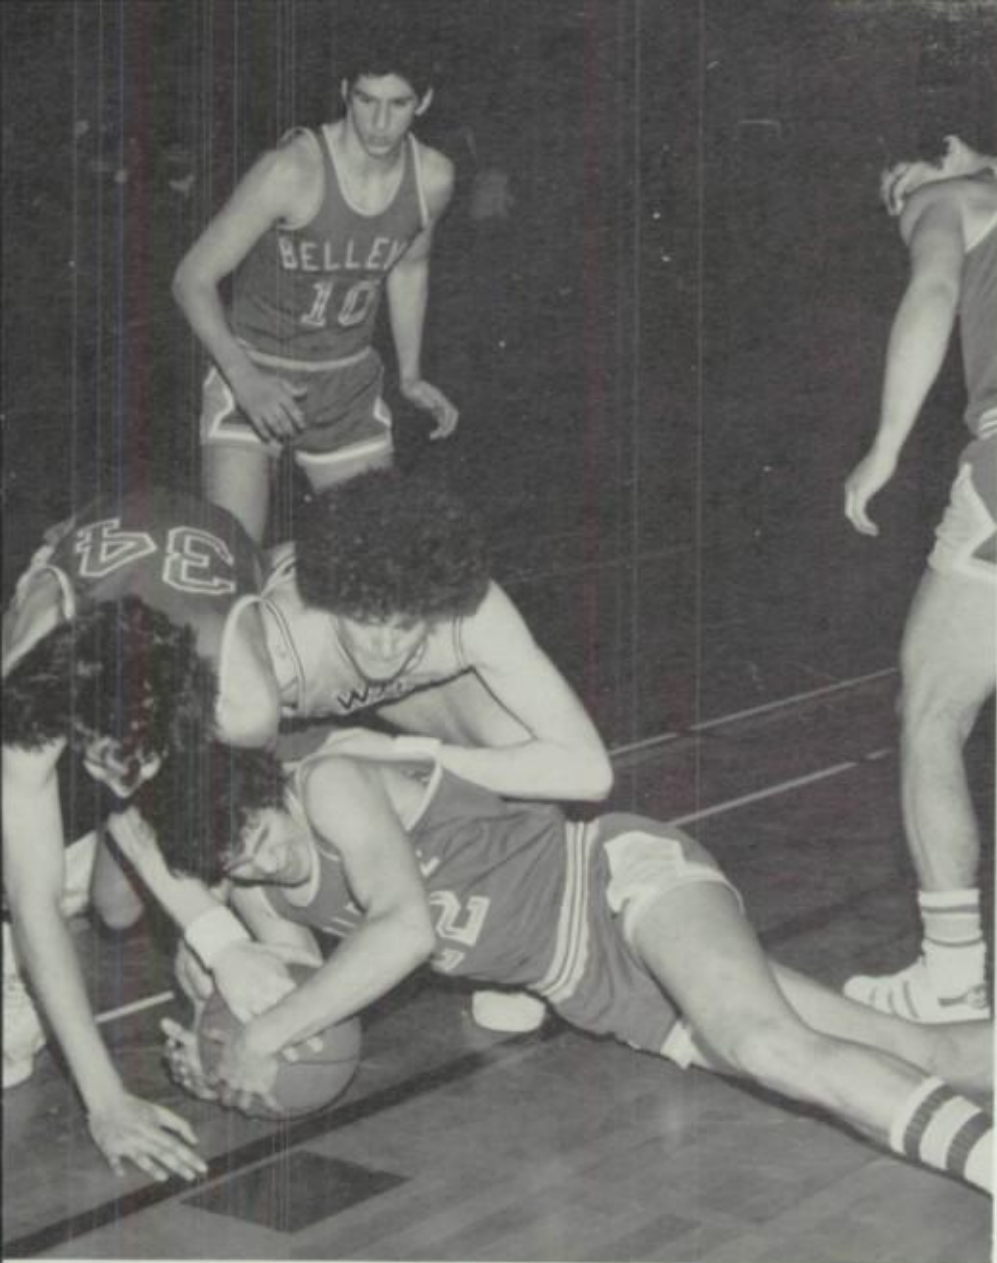

The hoopsters took three games into overtime and one into double-overtime. "We gave the opponents as tough as a time as we could," commented one player.

The team members all spent fairly equal amounts of time on the floor.

1. Junior Pat McCarthy shows everyone watching that stealing the ball from the opponents isn't that easy.
2. Senior Bruce Lewis demonstrates how to get around obstacles during the game.
3. Coach Fran Drake watches his team with a serious look, as he thinks of future plays for coming games.
4. Seniors Jim Flemming, Russ King and Junior Pat McCarthy keep up the offensive attack for another Newport basket.
5. Jim Flemming, senior, is caught by the photographer while showing how graceful shooting a basket can look.
6. Russ King, senior, takes his time and aims for his second free throw shot.
7. Senior Jim Flemming goes up for an uncontested rebound as team members look on.

Hoopsters spark as season closes

At the close of every sporting season everyone is always speculating about the next year. Things look good for the future for the Knights. Sixteen sophomores will be ready for the Varsity Squad and five let-termen; Steve Paustain, Pat McCarthy, Brian King, Kraig McCann and Rich Lundberg, all juniors, will be returning for another season. Also returning will be sophomores Ron Romanick and Jim Fletcher. Leaving the team are seniors Gene Minnich, Les Hurlburt, Russ King, Bruce Lewis and Jim Flemming.

"Basketball is a team sport. It doesn't hold room for individuals," concluded Coach Murphy.

1. Senior Gene Minnich caught in mid-air while doing a perfect lay in for another score.
2. Les Hurlburt, senior, hopes the ball will come his way after rebounding off the rim.
3. Gene Minnich, senior, takes a few minutes for himself after a lost game, thinking of all the little mistakes that can cost Newport the win.
4. Senior Bruce Lewis finds an open spot and takes advantage of it to put the team ahead by two.
5. Seniors Russ King and Jim Flemming show some good teamwork in front of the basket.
6. Coach Jim Murphy watches a team member closely during a free throw, in hopes that all the time and effort of coaching pays off.

Development is key

Teamwork and skills improvement were key goals emphasized by both Girls' and Boys' Junior Varsity Basketball teams throughout the year. These factors contributed to the success of both teams.

The Girls' Basketball team, under the coaching of Ms. Genese Harney, ended the season with a 9 win, 2 loss record. Contributing to the girls finishing second in the league was the team's leading scorer, Senior Kim Gustafson, with a total of 53 points. Coach Harney commented, "We did believe, therefore we won."

The boys' team ended the season with a 10 win, 7 loss record. Success of the team cannot be judged by the team's record since they ended the season by defeating the district teams which beat them at the opening of the season. Coach Jim Murphy commented, "I emphasized teamwork and fundamentals and to do the best they possibly could."

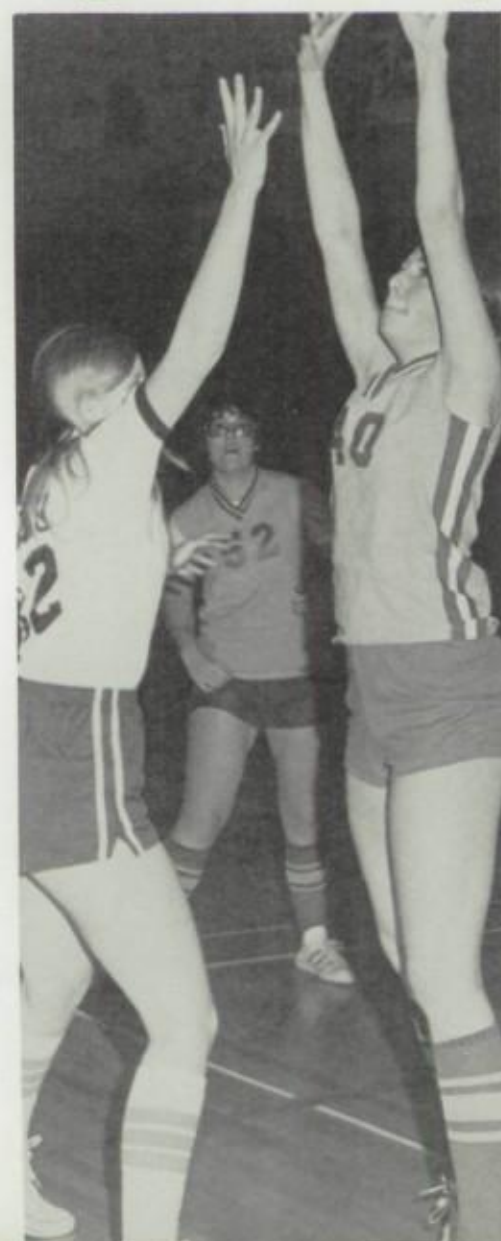

1. Coach of the J.V. team, Genese Harney, discusses game tactics with a few members of the team.
2. Jamie Schenk is caught off guard as an opponent snatches the ball away from her, surprising her greatly.
3. Senior Sarah Gulick stretches in order to guard her own basket from an eager opposing team member.
4. A Bellevue player reaches in an effort to steal from Todd Sessions while he tries to score.
5. Using quick moves, Tom Lockwood out-manuevers his opponent by sneaking around him.
6. Looking for an opening Senior Sue Schenk pauses momentarily close enough for two points.
7. Keith Duffy, junior, leaps in the air before making his two points for the J.V. team.
8. With a great effort Tom Lookwood bends into his layup and succeeds in scoring with ease.
9. Although looking like dancing Mike Bailey is actually reaching for a ball, fighting for it.
10. Todd Sessions tries to reach for the ball in order to save a layup for the opposing team.

Girls' Basketball exhibits teamwork

"We almost got it together this year . . ." commented Jody McCarthy, exhibiting the quality of Knight determination. Completing the season with a win-loss record of seven and four, the importance of working as a team was stressed throughout the entire season.

The girls also worked individually, showing the spirit of the Knights as they went on from game to game. Some of the outstanding players included Katy Miskimen, leading scorer; Faye Eken, playing exceptional defense; and Royanne Mathieson, coming back for her third year as a varsity player with consistent scoring.

Looking ahead, Katy Miskimen said, "Next year we're going to make it to the playoffs and maybe . . . take state!"

1. Senior Diane Copenhaver runs for a layup with protection from Senior Sue Monda.
2. With tough opposition from her opponent, Senior Royanne Mathieson shoots for two as Senior Sue Monda anticipates the score.
3. Coach Jan DeLacy warms the bench as she contemplates her team's strong performance.
4. Surrounded by Saints, Junior Julie Hansen and Sophomore Laurie Clarke concentrate on moving the ball down the court.
5. Juniors Tanya Johnson and Jody McCarthy and Sophomore Faye Eken listen to Coach DeLacy.
6. Leaping over her opponent's arms, Sue Monda, senior, makes another basket.

Grapplers thrive on determination

Wrestling is a team sport that stands alone. Not many people understand its strategies and exceptional wrestlers are few and far between.

Dedication, desire and determination was the team motto this season. Along with this came two new coaches. Mr. Dave Stark became the new head coach and Mr. Dave Ticen the assistant coach.

For a young team the grapplers faired well. The team was not expected to do well, but it ended the season with 6 wins, 10 losses and 1 tie. Scott Surber was the team's most outstanding member. He wrestled in the unlimited weight class and ended the season with 16 wins and no losses. He also tied the school record of eleven pins in one season.

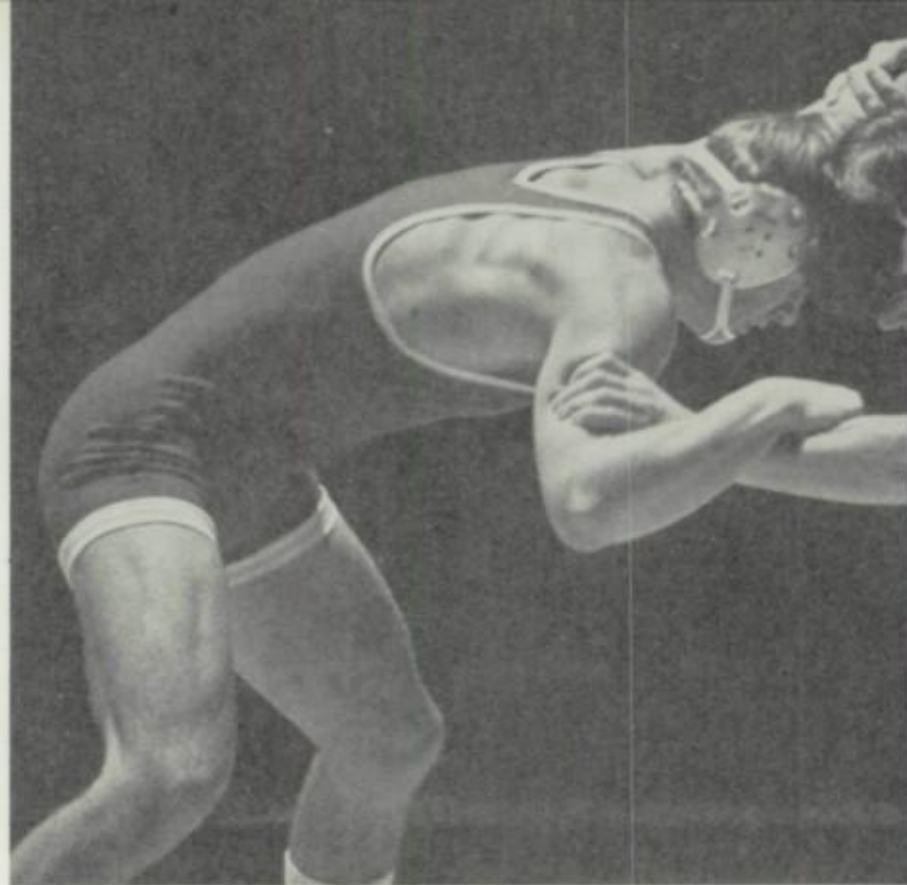

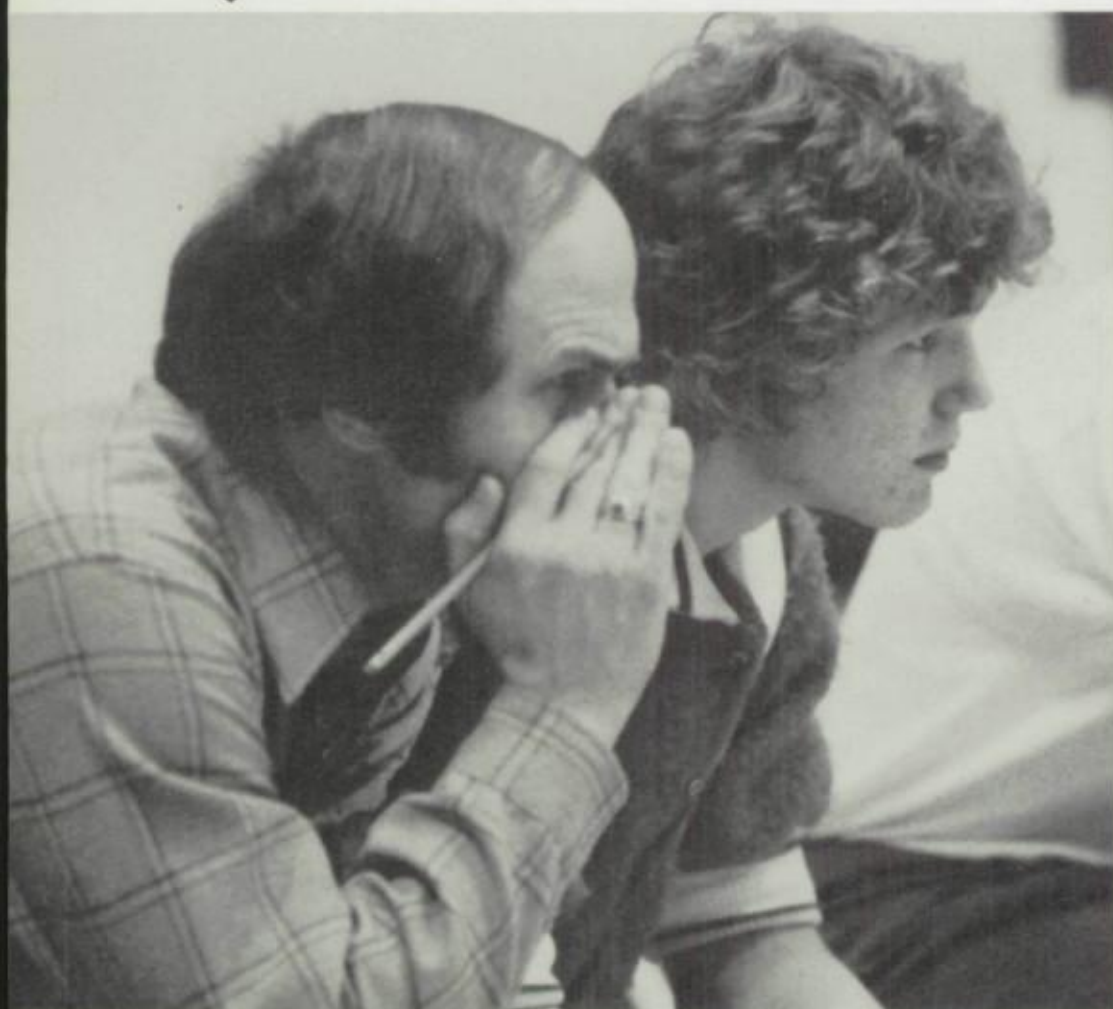

Senior Kelly Williamson, Juniors Randy King and Brett Bollinger and Sophomore Eddie King were also exceptional wrestlers this season.

Workouts were strenuous, involving two hours of pure movement and hard work. The grapplers did calisthenics, learned new techniques and wrestled each other to ready themselves for matches.

"We're looking forward to a good season next year. Even though we'll be losing three seasoned wrestlers, we will have a strong set of good underclassmen," commented Coach Stark.

1. Coach Dave Stark and Junior Stig Johansen are intently watching the strategy used by one of the matmen.
2. Sophomore Torrey Dringman in a stale-mate, fights it out until the end.
3. In a stack-up, Senior Kelly Williamson scores points toward a victory.
4. Junior Randy King uses an arm-bar in an attempt to flip his opponent over.
5. Junior Dan Linthicum gets ready to put a move on his opponent.
6. Senior Norm Parish walks away from a winning match with a grin.
7. Senior Scott Serber going for the final win during his undefeated season.
8. Sophomore Eddie King uses the cradle position in an attempt to pin his opponent.

Grace is stressed

The tension mounted as the Girls' Gymnastics Team neared the final King County meet. The girls displayed strength and grace in their win over Redmond and showed their hidden talents as they brushed close with Interlake and Mercer Island, losing those meets by mere tenths of a point.

The practices were long and hard; every weekday after school until 6 p.m. and frequently several hours on weekends. Junior Shawna Casey was the top all-around competitor, performing in all four events throughout the season; bars, beam, vault and floor exercise. Two sophomores, Colleen McShane and Lisa Maybee, in spite of foot and ankle injuries, were also all-arounds during most of the season.

But the team also had some relaxation as they gathered for a Christmas party and the awards banquet at the Spaghetti Factory.

Ms. Judy Rice, coach, said, "I think the group is really improving and most team members will return to an exciting season next winter."

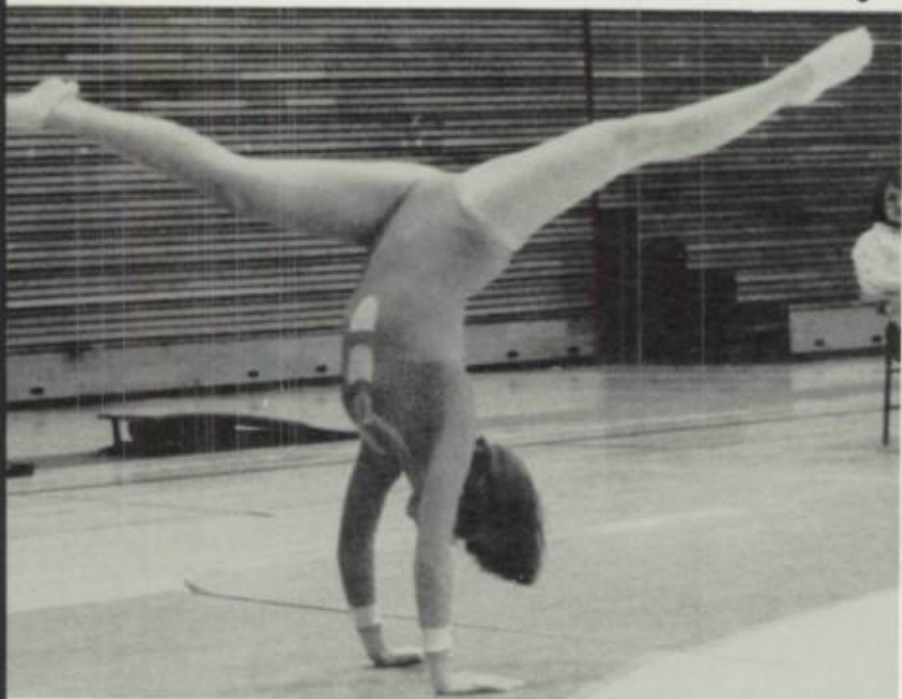

1. Balancing carefully on the uneven parallel bars is Junior Shawna Casey, all-around gymnast.
2. Junior Cindy Carter, with timing form in mind, vaults gracefully over the horse.
3. Megan Raymond, senior, ends her compulsory floor exercise with a turn of her hand.
4. Practicing diligently on the balance beam before a meet is Sophomore Carolyn Shelley.
5. The gymnasts show various moods as they watch performances and wait to hear a score.
6. Shawna Casey, junior, concentrates on holding a position straight and erect while on the balance beam.
7. Megan Raymond, senior, looks a little nervous as she stretches for the judges to see.
8. Leaping into the air, Shawna Casey displays a graceful effort by lifting her head back.
9. While exhibiting her floor exercise, Megan Raymond, senior, executes a split handstand.
10. A scene that reflects anxiety and nervousness is shown here immediately before a meet.

'Guts and Glory' is swim team motto

'Peaches and cream, peaches and cream, we're the boys from the Newport team. We're not rough and we're not tough, but boy are we determined.'

And determined they were, for this was the first year in the swim team's history that it won the District 3 championship, and then went on to place a respectable fourth place in the state meet.

The spotlight was on two Juniors, Leo Kosenkranius and O'Dea import Jeff Morgan. Their performances compiled three District records and six State finalist positions.

Leo set two District records in the 200 IM and 100 Breast with times of 1:59.0 and 1:01.0 and was a state finalist in both events.

Jeff placed second in the state meet in the 200 Free and third in the 100 Butterfly with times of 1:48.5 and 52.0 respectively.

Other top performers were Seniors Ken Andrews, Jerry Jaderholm, Kevin Majeau, and Glen Simmerly, Juniors Jeff Meyers, Matt Mabus and Mike Woerner, and Sophomores Brad Hales, Kirk Figon and Tim Kusumi.

Reflecting on the past season, coach Don Perry seemed somewhat disappointed. "We should have won all of our dual meets," he said "We just had too many ineligible swimmers at the beginning of the season, but I am very pleased with our first place finish at District."

1. Junior Jeff Morgan from O'Dea High School in Seattle, comes up for a breath while swimming the 100 Fly.
2. Sophomore Steve Ducic concentrates deeply while swimming the 100 Backstroke.
3. Coach Don Perry discusses team strategy with some of the team members before the start of a meet.
4. Sophomore Alan Brown takes a breather before climbing out of the pool after his race.
5. Freshman Charlie Crane stands on the end of the diving board before attempting a back somersault.
6. On the starting block, Senior Glen Simmerly prepares to swim the 50 Freestyle.
7. Sophomore Kirk Figon, Junior Leo Kosenkranius and Senior Jeff Campbell take time out to talk over upcoming competition.
8. Senior Ken Andrews swims Breaststroke during the 200 Individual Medley.

A game at a time

After starting the season ranked eighth in the nation the Sluggers had their work cut out for them.

Practice started February 21 with the team out on the field Monday through Saturday and sometimes Sunday for three to three-and-a-half hours. From the original forty who turned out, about thirty actually got to wear a uniform: sixteen sophomores, eight juniors and six seniors, five of which were returning lettermen.

With a season of twenty-seven games: fifteen league and twelve practice, Coach Bob Albo said, "We only concentrate on playing one game at a time."

Thus, the baseball season of '77 ended with league championships on May 20 and 21, regional finals on May 27 and 28 at Sicks Stadium and State on June 3 and 4, also at Sicks Stadium.

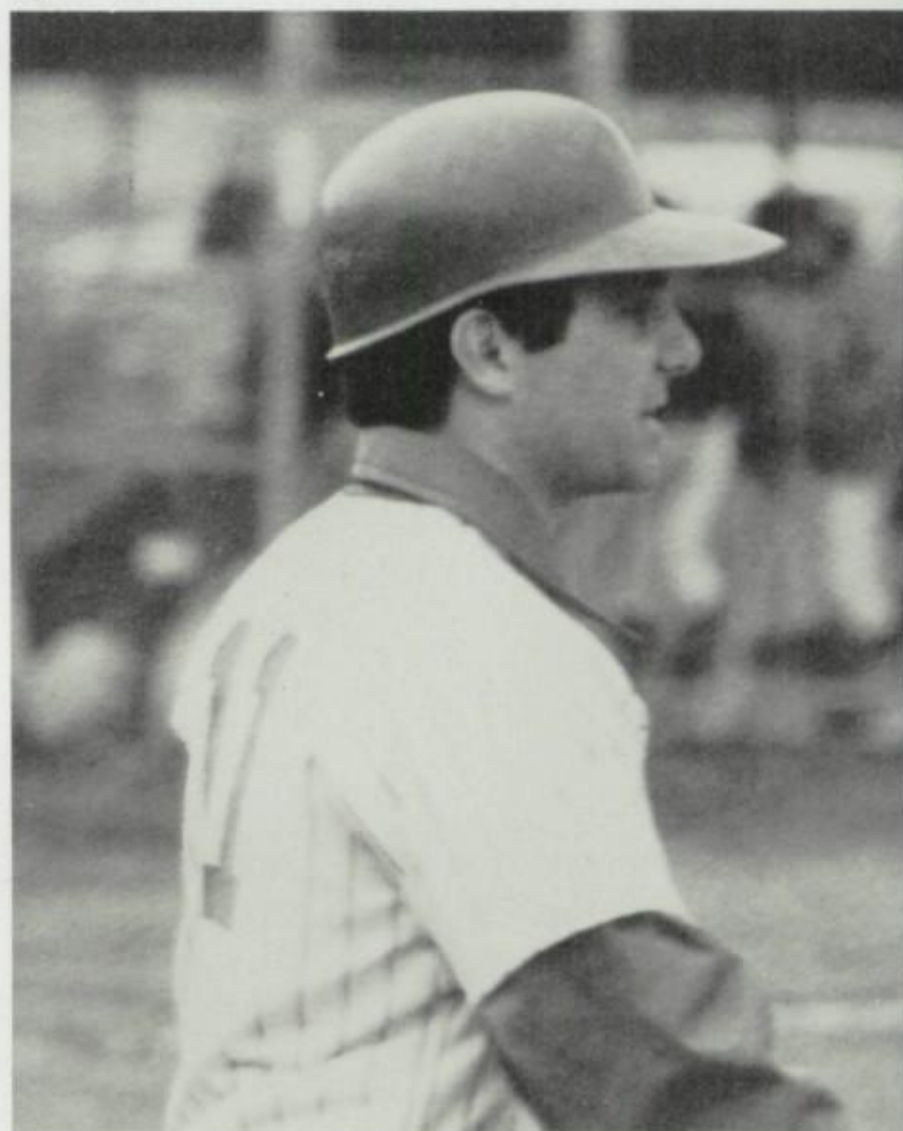

1. Seniors Jim Bailey and Ross Levine are disappointed with the umpire's unusual call.
2. As catcher, Senior Brad Connell must have a quick arm and fast reflexes to make outs for the team.
3. Outfielder Curt Cryderman prepares to come up to bat, but pauses for some advice from the coach.
4. Squinting into the sun Coach Bob Albo watches his team practice before their upcoming game.
5. Coach Bob Albo and Pitcher Cliff Pastornicky discuss game tactics on the mound in the middle of a game.
6. Up to bat, Senior Cliff Pastornicky gets ready to hit a home run to break the tie game.
7. Stooping to retrieve a grounder, Senior Scot Nebeker moves in on the oncoming runner.

Girls' badminton is strong all around

In hopes of keeping with the old tradition, the Girls' Badminton Team had a fine season. Although not as many girls returned to competition this year as was hoped the team was fairly balanced with an array of all three classes.

Varsity singles were established early in the season. The top three consisted of Junior Terrie Rogers and Senior Tim Gustafson, who both earned letters last year, and Sophomore Faye Eken. The three top doubles teams battled it out for the two varsity positions during the season. They were: Seniors Chris Erickson and René Revel, Juniors Bobbi Jo Duvall and Carol Howe, and Senior Christine Baker and Junior Sue Waiss.

"It's tough to maintain wins when all the teams in the five-league competition are pointing to you and looking at last year's no-loss record," said Coach Ray Lincoln, "but we have a hard working team that's strong all the way around."

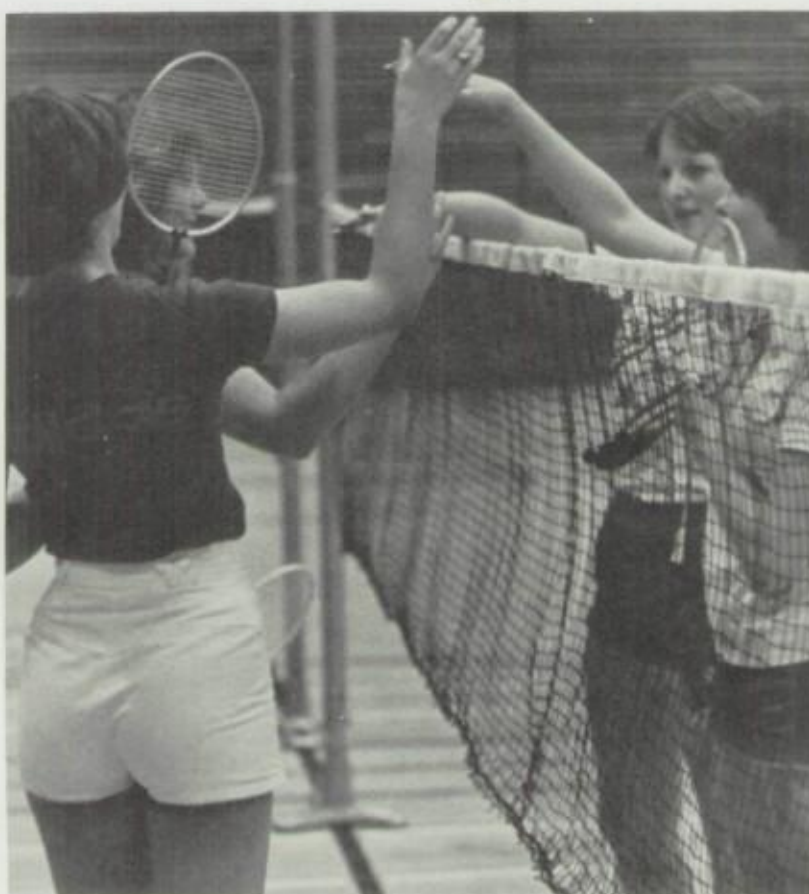

1. Junior Sue Waiss puts in her best serve, making it hard for her opponent to return it.
2. Coach Ray Lincoln of the Girls' Badminton Team pauses to give Jr. Sue Waiss some help.
4. Poised and ready to smash her opponent's serve at a match is Junior Susan Gustafson.
5. Good sportsmanship still lives as the two opposing teams shake hands after a tough match.

Tennis anyone? Skill brings wins

Tennis is more than a game of hitting a ball over a net with a racket. Skill, concentration and determination are all key ingredients needed to make up a winning tennis team. This is why the Boys' Tennis Team was expected to be one of the top teams in the KingCo league.

The team started the season strong with hopes of placing high in the league. The team's toughest opponents included Mercer Island and Sammamish, who the team considered their main rivals.

The squad consisted of 15 players, made up of six seniors; Doug Kosanke, Tim Hosking, John Comerford, Doug Lawrenson, Rod Lank and Matt Wells, and nine underclassmen. An inspiration to the team was Sophomore Scott Pearson, who had an excellent season according to Coach Bob Cleland.

He also commented, "There has been a lot of growth in the past few years. The players are all above average."

3. Sophomore Scott Pearson gives a confident smile as he steps into a strong backhand.
6. Waiting for the right chance to catch his opponent off-guard is Senior Matt Wells.
7. Senior Doug Kosanke goes for his dangerous smash serve with strong form and a trained eye.
8. Despite the cold, overcast day, Senior John Comerford steadily prepares for a match.

Team shows skill

For the first time in years the KingCo Soccer League was well rounded and it was going to be a real fight for the championship. As the 1976 squad romped its way to glory most of the team's toughest players romped off to college as well.

This year's team was a young one, consisting of mainly underclassmen. "We had only two returning lettermen," commented Coach Don Hershey. As a matter of fact the whole mid-field was made up of talented underclassmen.

The team spent a lot of practices working on basic skills, and Coach Hershey explained, "I'm a very ardent believer in fundamentals." To show just how dedicated this squad was they held practice at 6:30 every morning to run and get into top physical shape. "These guys had the best attitude I've seen in years," commented Coach Hershey. "They were always willing to learn new techniques and were constantly working at improving themselves. They were a great bunch of guys."

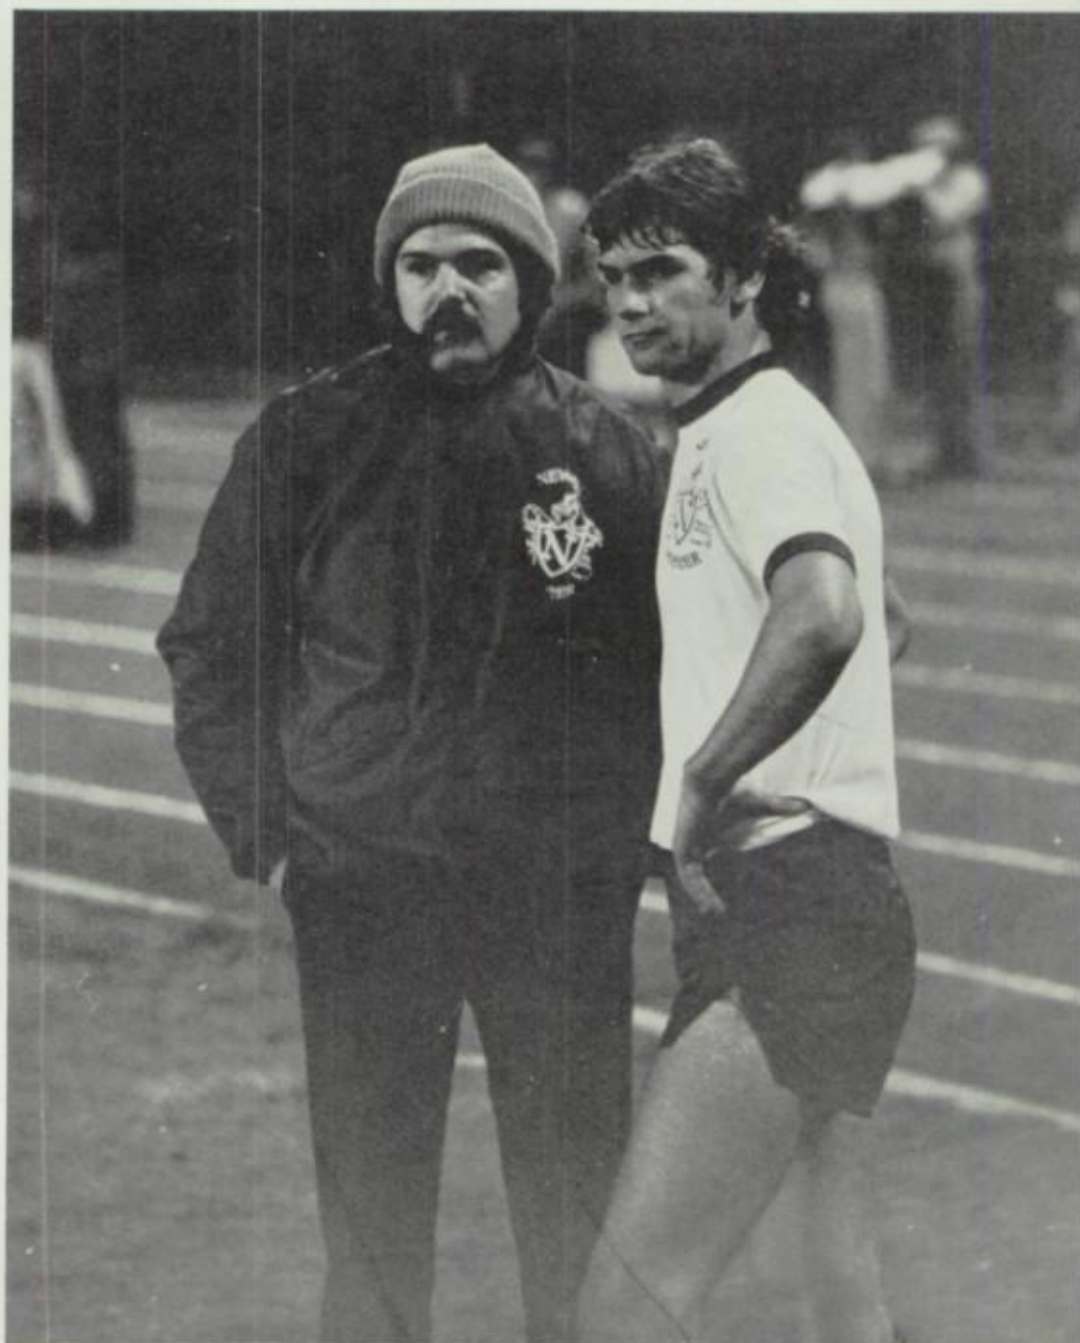

1. Junior: Roger Carlson comes from behind to take the ball away from his opponent.
2. Tom McCarthy, sophomore, finds that it's not so easy to hang on to the ball as one of the opponent's team members takes it away.
3. Coach Don Hershey and Senior Steve Nyman stand on the sidelines discussing the game.
4. Senior Russ King sends the ball back into the game and saves Newport a costly point.
5. Ross McIlroy, senior, runs into a couple of obstacles on his way across the field.
6. Sophomore Carl Sikkema, showing that soccer is a fast moving sport, makes it hard for the photographer to get a shot of him.
7. Randy Henzler, senior, tried maneuvering the ball into the opponent's goal.

Varsity soccer a first for girls

After a two year fight to become a varsity sport the Girls' Soccer Team finally pulled through. Ms. Tia Kinnear, adviser, worked with two former Newport students, Mike Smith and Laura Buck, and Manager Doreen Youderian.

The season started March 28 and after two cuts the team was limited to thirty-two girls who were then divided into varsity and junior varsity quads.

Practices were held alternately on the football field, baseball field and the new playfield in Newport Hills. Along with the privilege of being a new sport the girls received new uniforms, warm-ups, balls, nets and flags.

When asked who the key players might be, Ms. Kinnear stated, "There are no key players in soccer. It's a team sport that takes the effort of all to make it come out right."

In its first season as a varsity sport the Girls' Soccer Team, with an enormous number of experienced players, appeared to have the potential of a first place team.

1. Sophomore Traci Cooke pursues the ball during a preseason turn-out.
2. Advisor Tia Kinnear is pleased with the performance of the team.
3. Coach Mike Smith shares a few of his soccer experiences with Junior Cheryl Schmitz.
4. Junior Sandi Simpkins and Sophomore Kathy Johnson engage in a battle for possession of the ball.
5. With determination showing on her face Senior Sammi Piha leans into a firm pass from one of her teammates.
6. Displaying excellent soccer form are Junior Cari Rawlinson and Senior Sue Anderson.
7. Sophomore Laurie Clark concentrates on her next offensive move during a practice session.

Team shows spirit

Track is a sport in which each person competes for his own benefit, but the Boys' Track Team showed "team spirit" and concern for each other.

Approximately 65 boys turned out and about 45 actually competed in track and field events. The strongest track events were the high hurdles, long distances and sprints. Strong field events were the triple and long jumps.

The three main track meets were King-Co, held at Sammamish; District at Highline High; and State at Renton Stadium.

Reflecting on the past year, Coach Dwaine Hatch said, "The Boys' Track Team was a group of excellent, dedicated athletes whose goal was to take league, district and finally the state title."

1. Sophomore Matt Brenner narrowly crosses the high jump bar during competition in the KingCo league.
2. Junior Todd Schmidt puts all his effort into clearing the bar during tough competition.
3. Coach Dwaine Hatch smiles as he watches a member of the track squad score another victory.
4. Senior Chris Hudson and Junior Phil McKee set the pace for their opponents during the first lap of the mile run.
5. Senior Craig Runnels sprints toward the finish line with hopes of placing first in the event.
6. Junior Terrence Scott attempts to beat tough competition and place high in the long jump.

Girls try again for number one

The Girls' Track Team had a large turnout and this was the second year it was undefeated in the league.

The team's strongest events were in running and relays. Senior Sue Monda held first in the 440-yard dash for two years at 59.9 and 24.5 in the 220-yard dash. Junior Therese Brenner broke the school's record for the 100-yard dash at 11.5. Michele Carver, a sophomore, was undefeated in the 880-yard dash at 2:23.9. The team was second in King-Co, and City Champs for two years. Coach Cathy Hutton said, "This is an outstanding team of many talented, hard working girls."

1. With sheer determination Senior Kim McCormick strives for longer distance in the long jump.
2. Sophomore Jenny Johnson strains forward for every inch during one of the season's track meets.
3. While members of the Boys' Track Team look on Senior Janice Begg flies into the sand.
4. Sophomore Michele Carver finishes the mile run with an expression of relief on her face.
5. Senior Sue Monda, defending state champion, prepares for a quick start in the 440 yard dash.

'Rally' involves all

In a small conservative town in Connecticut during the early 1960's the Army decided to build a guided missile base. What happened? Conflict. Conflict between the townsfolk and the Army, domestic conflict, and conflict of the townsfolk's morals. So it was as Newport students presented the spring play, "Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys!"

This was the second time "Rally" was performed at Newport. Mr. Bill Eyman, director, stated, "I wanted to get maximum involvement, and we did. It was truly an all-school play."

A production cannot be performed to its fullest without the backstage crew. Stephanie Dye, stage production manager, was a vital part of the play. The acting was excellent, large crowds attended, and everyone who worked with or saw the play enjoyed it.

1. The citizens of Putnam's Landing are involved in the excitement of a town meeting.
2. Opie Dalrymple, played by Junior Tim Betz, sings a back-home country song while the townsgirls, played by Junior Nicki Sutich and Sophomore Alice Palmer, are overcome by their idol.
3. Juniors Chuck Parks and Jennifer Vadino try to hold a conversation while Junior Megan Sutton pesters them.
4. Guido and Maggie, played by Junior Jeff Allison and Senior Alex McLennan, tenderly embrace while Juniors Todd Henry and Perry Krallis look on.
5. During the "play within the play" Junior Perry Krallis leads the other townsboys, played by Senior Andy Strehler and Junior Dan Monda, into an attack on the Redcoats.
6. Gary Long and Wendy Kelling, seniors, settle a disagreement after a marital spat.

The Newport fans show school spirit

The fans of Newport were, in one word, enthusiastic about all the different teams they supported by cheering them on during all the games they attended. The spirit which the fans radiated showed the excitement and confidence needed for the team's victories.

In the past and in the future all of the fans will act the same, with all of their support, but one thing will be different, and that is the changing faces that pass through from year to year.

1. Sophomore Michelle Carver lets everyone know what she thinks about the last basket.
2. Junior Matt Karwall gives it all he's got while playing the trombone during a basketball game.
3. Juniors Bruce King, Brian Havist and Brian Frazee glance at the camera while the Knights call time out.
4. Sophomore Tracy Olsen gives a hand for Newport as we make a basket.
5. Newport fans again show their enthusiasm by attending the school games and watching the Knights in action.

Camelot goes co-ed

Camelot Club is devoted to promoting spirit and good times. The club's achievements were divided into two catagories: social activities and service functions.

Their social activities included the holiday tolo, "In Time of Silver Rain," a spring tolo, the sale of valegrams and candy and pep pin sales for raising money. Camelot also put on a fashion show, had a daddy-daughter dessert and a mother-daughter tea, all of which were held in the spring.

Among their service functions were the CARE PACKAGES the club sent to various needy countries, helping with pep decorations, going Christmas caroling and naming a senior person of the month.

The four Club officers were, President Jan Livingston, Vice-president Sherrill Jackson, Treasurer Fran Baumgartner and Secretary Sue Griswold. They all worked together along with the cabinet and other members of Camelot to organize and follow through with most of their planned activities.

"Camelot was a magical city in the days of King Arthur. The club members hope that they provided some of that magic here," philosophized Ms. Sharon Cruikshank, adviser.

1. Ms. Sharon Cruikshank, advisor, makes a couple of suggestions during a meeting.
2. Camelot Club President Jan Livingston yields the floor to one of the other members.
3. Members of Camelot Club are listening attentively to some fund raising ideas.
4. Vice-president Sherrill Jackson helps herself to some refreshments during a break at one of their meetings.
5. Camelot Club members listen as the officers call the meeting to order.
6. Secretary Sue Griswold and Treasurer Fran Baumgartner are debating over some important ideas while munching on a piece of candy.

Homecoming was an exciting week

Participation and time were two of the main factors for Homecoming's great success. Its theme was "Echoes still sounding," and the overall chairperson for events was Senior Tim Hosking.

Once again the class of '78 took first in the powderpuff football games, held during both lunch hours for two days. Other events included a bonfire on the baseball field, a sophomore slave day and a hick day.

On the final night of the week awards were given during half-time at the football game against Inglesmoor. Seniors took first place in the halls competition, where their theme was "Lightning never strikes twice," juniors second with "Still crazy after all these years," and sophomores third with "New Horizons."

First places were also awarded to the seniors for their skit performed during the pep assembly and for the float competition.

Seniors Jim Bailey and Cyndee Mattson reigned as king and queen during Homecoming '76. Senior princesses were Beth Hurter and Sarita Riley, and princes were Gene Minnich and Ken Kurata. Junior royalty were Tim Betz and Nicki Sutich, and sophomore prince and princess were Jeff Hedwall and Evi Kosenkranius.

It was a festive week with many activities and good memories.

1. Senior Tim Hosking escorts Homecoming Queen Cyndee Mattson on Homecoming night.
2. Sophomore Prince and Princess Jeff Hedwall and Evi Kosenkranius smile at the crowd.
3. Junior JoAnn Macauley tries to sneak by the senior women in one of the powderpuff football games.
4. Senior Prince Ken Kurata escorts Senior Princess Sarita Riley around the field.
5. Senior Les Hurlbert portrays a knight on the senior float, whose theme was "Lightning never strikes twice."
6. Members of the Drill Team show enthusiasm at the football game against Inglesmoor.
7. The sophomore float, with a theme of "New Horizons," took third place in the float competition.
8. Senior Prince Gene Minnich escorts Princess Beth Hurter on Homecoming night.
9. Senior Tanya Orlando performs a routine with Drill Team during half-time.
10. The junior float took second in competition where the theme was "Still crazy after all these years."

Juniors triumph in Powderpuff games

Homecoming tradition was kept alive once again as the girls played their annual games of Powderpuff Football. Coached by Mr. Bill Bloomer's star football players, the girls learned tough defensive tactics and the tricky maneuvers of the Knight wishbone.

The first game was played on Wednesday, with the sophomores challenging the juniors. The powerful junior team had no problem defeating the sophomores, 22-0.

The championship game was held the following day with the undefeated juniors against the senior women. At halftime the score was 12 all, and it became apparent that the two teams were closely matched. At the end of regulation time the score was still tied. The game went into overtime, with the juniors coming out on top, 18-12.

Powderpuff Football at Newport gave the old cliché a new twist: "It's not whether you win or lose, but how much fun you have while playing the game."

1. Juniors Laura Doman and Lorraine Eason are caught up with the thrill of victory.
2. Junior Keely Campbell receives the pass, while Seniors Mary Plager and Debbie Freed get ready to grab her flag.
3. Although Senior Wanda Miles is in hot pursuit, Junior Patti Pawliuk gains some yards with the help of her teammate Joanne Mac Aulay.
4. Senior Royanne Mathiesen is determined to pick up some yards for the senior women.
5. Junior Therese Brenner runs for a first down with the help of good blocking by Junior Patti Pawliuk.
6. Trying for a touchdown, Junior Jamie Jaderholm clutches the football tightly and heads for the goal line.

They march on

Spending a lot more time together, building unity and making closer friends was the accomplished goal of the 1977 Knight Crusaders, according to Ms. Barbara Velategui, adviser.

Besides marching at all home football games and most home basketball games, the 32 juniors and seniors also participated in such activities as pot-luck suppers, a Christmas party and exchanging gifts with their "secret-pals" before every home game. Birthdays and special days were brought to attention by the Captains Renae Bair and Julie Boris, and Lieutenant Mary Plager was responsible for the music and counts of each march.

Although it looks like all fun and games it's not always what it seems. It takes about two weeks for the team to learn a routine, practicing everyday during lunch and sometimes before and after school. They spent approximately 300 hours working, practicing and enjoying their time together.

1. With knees held high and smiling faces beaming, the 1977 Newport Knight Crusaders perform at a football game.
2. Senior Tanya Orlando looks to the right as she concentrates on perfecting the routine.
3. Sarah Niebauer and Renae Bair, seniors, show big smiles as they wait for the half-time festivities to begin.
4. Senior Mary Plager is determined to stay in line with the rest of the team during a practice session in the Gym.
5. Seniors Mary Wiggins and Kathy Akiyama and Junior Anne Griesbaum get caught up in the spirit of an exciting football game.
6. There's always time for a smile when discussing drill team antics with Ms. Barbara Velategui, adviser.

Pep arouses spirit

When fans watched the cheerleaders in action all they thought about was how well the cheers were performed. However, cheerleading is much more than arousing spirit from a dead crowd. Most of the work goes on behind the scenes.

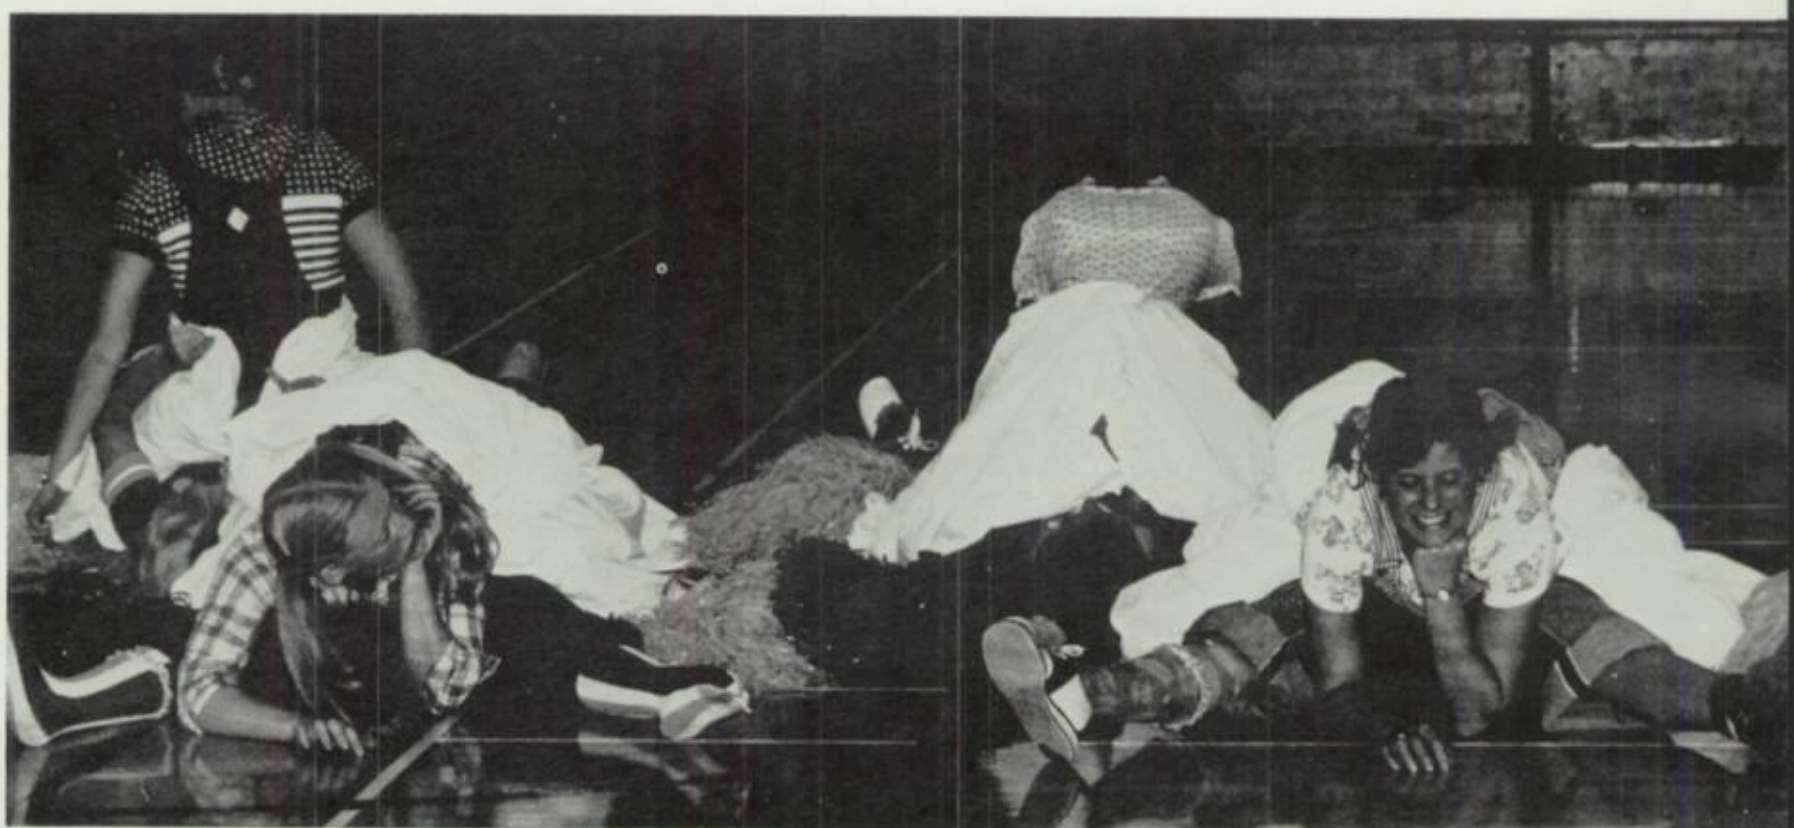

As Ms. Genese Harney, adviser for the cheerleaders, put it, "People saw the cheerleaders make mistakes and were quick to point them out, but they don't realize the girls had no time to practice."

Three quarters of the cheerleaders' time was taken up with pep promotion, locker decorations for sports, both fall/winter and spring, pep assemblies, and baking treats for the teams before the games. Only one quarter of their time was spent in actual cheer routine practice.

The six fall and six winter cheerleaders were required to spend a week out of the summer at leadership camp in order to learn new cheers and pick up ideas for skits. In addition to this the girls practiced every-day after school.

1. From September to November the "A-Squad" cheerleaders cheered with precision, timing and enthusiasm.
2. The crowd responds to the smiling faces of cheerleaders Marilyn Otter and Lisa Kutch.
3. Throughout the football game Cheerleaders Denise Simmons, Linda Ward and Synde Carter show originality with clever formations.
4. During a tense moment the "B-Squad" pauses to watch an exciting play.
5. During a break in the action basketball cheerleaders Terri Barber, Laura Doman and Patti Pawliuk entertain the crowd.
6. The "A-Squad" cheerleaders perform a clever skit that amused the crowd during the Homecoming Assembly.

Creativity thrives

One area of activity that never gets enough recognition is the Arts. The art program includes pottery, drawing and painting, creative design, jewelry, graphics and photography. Also there are the woods, metals, and architectural drawing classes. Throughout the day one can find students creating and learning new and useful things in various fields of art.

Mr. John Grove, art teacher, commented, "It's astounding how many people take what they learn here and turn it into a career."

Students can be seen creating fine furniture in the woods classes, exquisite jewelry pieces in the jewelry classes and colorful banners and interesting photographs in the creative design and photography classes.

A highlight in the art department was the completion of the Art Gallery. It is a room designed for displays with ample glass cabinet space, and is also used as a supplementary classroom.

"We plan to add new courses to the program," added Mr. Grove, "as we try to meet the needs of the students."

1. Sophomore Karen Parsons uses her steady hand to get into the tight corners of her painting.
2. Senior Sue Gordon concentrates carefully on making another piece of jewelry.
3. Junior Keith Duffy checks his measurements to make sure they're accurate.
4. Junior Kim Leach adds more water to the clay while making a pot.
5. Senior Diana Dickenson cuts away the excess parts from her paper.
6. Sophomore Tim Aspinall works on one of the many projects he must do in metals.
7. Sophomore Eric Heinzinger sands down the rough edges of his wood.

The debate team is traditionally strong

"Our goal for the debate and competitive speech team was to prepare the debaters for the State Championships," stated Mr. Gary Walker, coach. The debate team traveled throughout the West Coast during the season, keeping the tradition as one of the best in the West, although finding their own path toward their own goals and achievements.

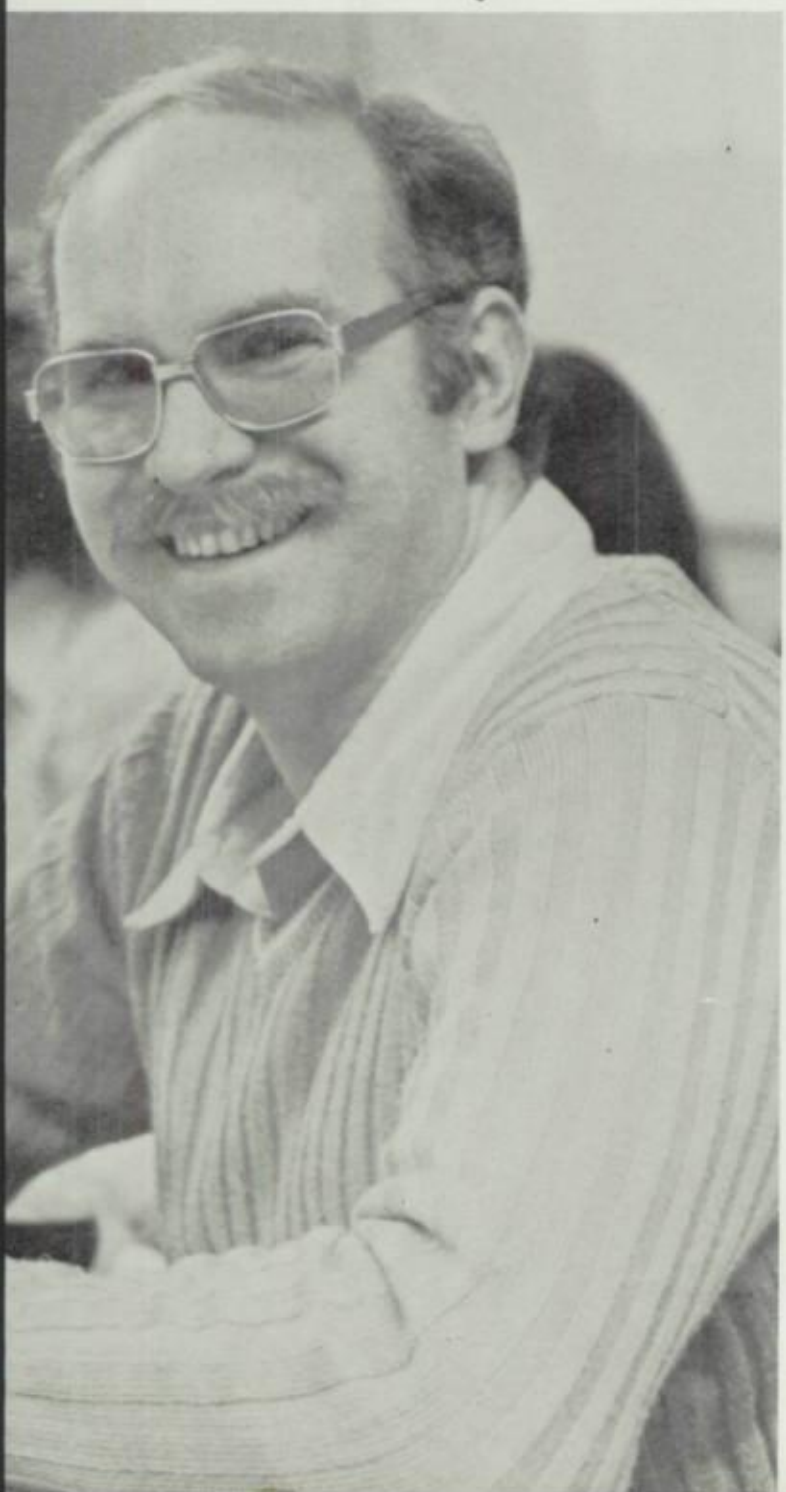

Many students proved their skill in the various areas of speech. These included Oratory, Interpretation of Literature, Extemporaneous, Impromptu, Expository and Debate.

The team was divided into the senior and junior divisions with many outstanding debaters in each class. Among those in the senior division were Gary Long, Shawna Undi, Connie Rolie, Arun Kapahi and Doug Smith. Those in the junior division were Wendy Kelling, Lynn Sage, Lee Ann Fujii, Jon Iverson and Jeff Allison.

1. Senior J. B. Slaughter states his case during one of the many tournaments this year.
2. Senior Arun Kapahi points out a few factors for a successful debate argument.
3. Senior Shawna Undi keeps the spirits of the team warm, and smiles for the annual photographer.
4. Gary Long, senior, demonstrates his expository writing project during one of the tournaments.
5. The "spark" of the team, Coach Gary Walker is both teacher and friend for all of the debaters on the team.
6. Seniors Greg Bader and Tim Hosking clown around while waiting to compete in another important tournament.

DECA delivers

DECA means Distributive Education Clubs of America. It's made up of both the General Marketing and Distributive Education classes.

DECA gives students the chance to work with business people as well as students from other high schools, as a practical application of what they learn in class.

DECA's first goal is to give the students the confidence and the experience to help them seek a job on their own. The "take over" of Tradewell, the decorating of the windows at Doce's and all the stock and inventory work done at Nordstorm's are a few examples.

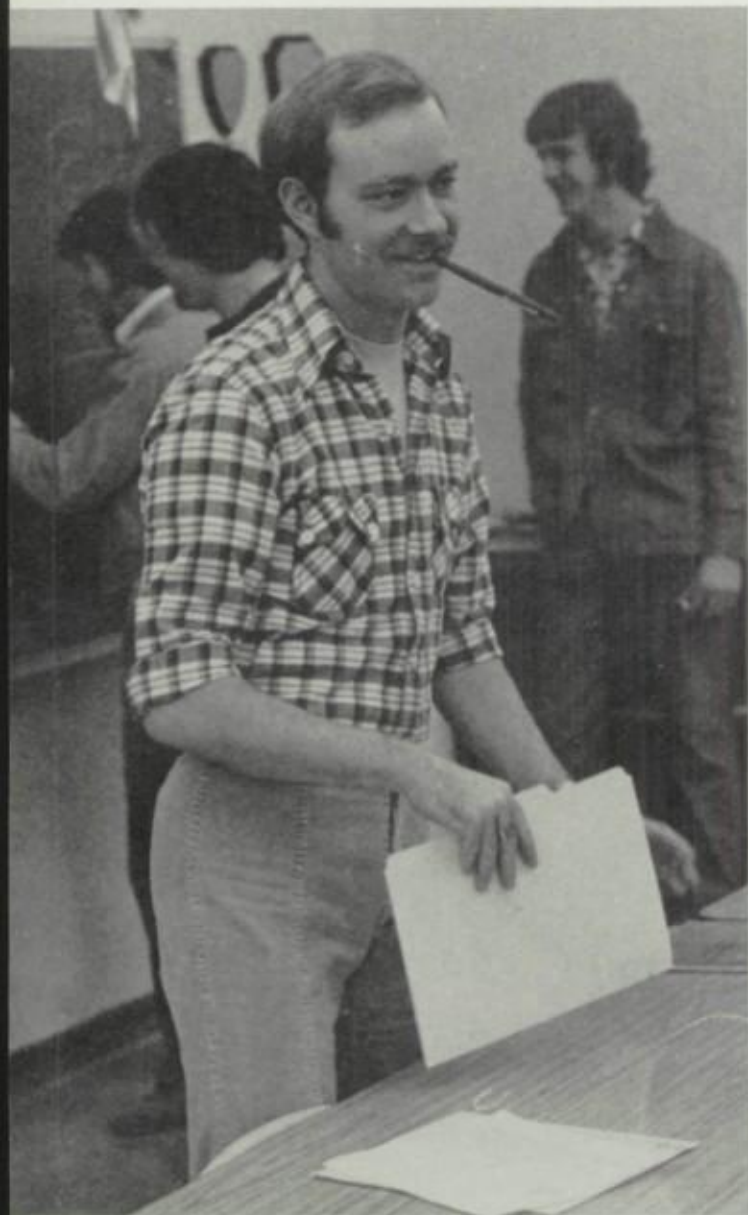

Students are also shown how important good human relations and personal attitudes are in finding and keeping a job.

As Mr. Bob Lavery said, "One of the most interesting things about the group is their determination to get something more out of high school, other than just a diploma."

1. Mr. Bob Lavery takes time to answer any and all questions students may have.
2. Senior Karen Stephens carefully studies her notes for the next test in class.
3. Junior Mike Nelson is caught by the camera while practicing his checker training.
4. Carol Gray, senior, listens carefully as Mr. Lavery explains the answer to her question.
5. President Jeff Schoonover, Vice-President J.D. Flick, Secretary Ellen Barone, Treasurer Beth Hermanson take a break from their club duties.
6. Busy working in class on a daily assignment is Randy Shetler, a senior.
7. Seniors Tom Joski, Wendy Aungst and Jan Miller are caught talking during class.

Knightlife is winner of many awards

Meeting a deadline, correcting the same mistakes many times, an irate adviser and the lack of funds were just some of the obstacles that the Knightlife staff managed to hurdle as the thirteenth edition was distributed through the halls.

A special award from the Seattle Times was presented to Knightlife for being one of the three best high school newspapers in Western Washington. Sandy Swan won best feature writer and Craig Runnels' "Knight Cap" was best column. Awards for best layout and makeup were also presented to the Knightlife staff. In May, the staff sponsored the annual Publications Award Banquet for all four Bellevue High Schools.

Looking back over the year, Editor Gregg Thomas commented, "We've had our ups and downs, but all our hard work paid off in the end."

1. Adviser Jack Wilson was caught with an occasional grin on his face as stories for the next edition of Knightlife were being signed up for in the background.
2. Photographer Brian Sims was caught in a picture while taking one.
3. On their favorite seat, news editor Mike Rann and Adviser Wilson discuss the paper while others listen.
4. Senior Jerry McComb has some suggestions for subjects to cover in Knightlife.
5. Sophomore Phil Simpkins is temporarily distracted from taking pictures at a basketball game.
6. Editor-in-chief Gregg Thomas is concentrating on getting the story straight while Craig Runnels helps him during paste-up.
7. Feature editor Sandy Swan proofreads the stories before having them typed and set for print.

Annual staff strives for more originality

What is an annual? It's a remembrance of times that have passed, things that have been done, people met and moments shared. For some, it is the only remnant of their high school days.

The job of the annual staff is very long and tedious. It's hard to get the best pictures to represent the glory and defeat of sports, the trials and tribulations of classes and the joys and sorrows of social life. The copy must be written to capture and keep the memories of the past year and everything must be interwoven with the theme, Harvest.

Unity and cooperation are important factors in the production of an annual. Although class time is provided, many extra hours are spent to meet deadlines and get the book out on time.

Upon concluding this 1977 school year we hope you enjoy this year-book and reflect upon many happy memories and times shared with special friends.

1. Our fearless leader, Jack Wilson, pauses a moment from checking a staff member's copy and captions.
2. Senior Irene Kruppa is busy typing captions for her layout.
3. Senior Bob Wyke is proofreading some body copy, while Junior Danna Sterling writes her picture captions.
4. Seniors Ken Kurata and Karen Kratzke decide upon which pictures to use for the Drill Team layout.
5. Editor Melanie Pollard, Senior, looks up from checking one of the many pages that must be sent in.
6. Sophomore Leslie Hales and Seniors Mary Mortimer and Wendy Aungst work hard to finish the paperwork before a deadline.
7. Senior Photographer Doug Jacobson looks through the many senior candid photos to decide on the ones with the best quality.
8. Senior Ellen Barone has the never ending job of producing the index.
9. By the looks of the messy table it looks as though Senior Lori Holm is having a little difficulty typing her picture captions.

Band performs enthusiastically

Every day the same thing would happen. One-hundred and five people would disappear into a large room in the Music Wing and melodious sounds would drift out. The people? Band students. The teacher? Mr. Bob Bailey. The music? The music could be heard at home football games, boys' basketball games, pep assemblies and concerts.

Mr. Bailey commented enthusiastically, "I think music is important in everyone's life. An instrument appeals to people." Instruments certainly appealed to four students who won the Northwest's recognition: Seniors Anne Pfeifer playing the flute and Melanie Pollard playing the contra bass clarinet, Junior Carey Fujii on the tenor saxophone and Jennifer Crowder playing the horn.

At least three formal concerts are given by the band each year, in addition to performances and contests between different high schools.

1. Mr. Bob Bailey, band director, patiently waits to begin a song during band practice.
2. With great precision, the trombone section practices for an upcoming concert.
3. French horns add to the intricate sounds performed by the band at a practice session.
4. Mr. Bailey tries to get everyone's attention during a warm-up session before class.
5. All the hard work and hours finally come down to a perfectly performed song.
6. Building up their confidence, band members rehearse for the next basketball game.
7. The brass section produces the bass sounds that keep the whole band together.

Stage band exhibits exceptional talent

Although being involved with band is not a prerequisite for being a member of the stage band, most people are. Jazz and more difficult numbers are what the stage band is concerned with and usually the more experienced musicians participate in it.

Mr. Bob Bailey led the band through an exciting year of music. They were involved in putting on high school and junior high school concerts, performances for our school and at the King Co Pop and Jazz Festival. The Festival was a day of competition and presentations by ten high schools in King County. Seniors Jeff Wood and Bruce Kranak were chosen among eight students out of all the bands at the Festival as outstanding musicians.

1. During practice, the Stage Band concentrates on playing on time and with accuracy.
2. The saxophone section of the band plays a tune while looking at their music sheets.
3. Mike Lowe, Kevin Majeau and Matt Wells, all senior members, stand up and trumpet a song.
4. Waiting in anticipation to join in, the band listens to Senior Jeff Wood during a solo.

Bach is kept alive within the orchestra

Putting together the kind of music that demands a listening ear, the orchestra was kept busy throughout the year. The orchestra, which includes the Junior High students from Tyee, who come early in the morning, was the biggest that it's been in the past five years.

The students participated in many events, such as the KingCo Orchestra Festival in the Spring, plus many more performances during the school months.

"I'm really pleased with them," commented orchestra teacher John Cox. "The students are doing a variety of music and I think they feel good about what they have accomplished."

1. Kim Poppe and Ann Lee practice on violins before their actual performance with Mr. John Cox, their music teacher.

2. Laughing at a mistake she made, Paula Wertman, junior, continues on as though nothing ever happened.

3. Long hours are spent perfecting a song as shown here with Brad Beasley, a 7th grader at Tyee Junior High.

4. Working together, a portion of the orchestra concentrates on their music sheets.

Choir entertains many audiences

Keeping with the Choir's tradition of quality, the vocal music students used their singing talents to entertain many audiences.

All choral groups participated in the fall, winter and spring concerts, along with the KingCo and State music contests. They also performed a holiday concert at the Seattle Center last December.

The largest of the four vocal groups making up the Choir Department is the Concert Choir. Composed of 60 members, this vocal group sings classical music. The other vocal groups are Newport Singers, who sing Mandrigals and is composed of 15 members, Chorus with its 25 members singing many types of music and Knight Sounds, which is made up of 18 girls who center their music around pop and jazz.

The Choir is now under the direction of Mr. Geroqe Harshbarger, who with the help of Choir Presidents Ann Brogan and Kent Foster, kept the Choir at its best.

Mr. Harshbarger commented, "Newport has been an enjoyable experience. It is a pleasure to work with this caliber of students."

1. Knight Sounds singers Wendy Kelling, Barb Howton and Stacy Graven enjoy singing for Newport.
2. Tom Anderson and Greg Dore study their music before they begin.
3. The song remains the same for Seniors Dan Brown and Jim Keller.
4. Diane Copenhaver can't keep a straight face when she hears a sour note.
5. Newport Singer Carrie Cone concentrates on a certain sound.
6. Choir puts a different stance in their singing.
7. Kelli Topping waits for her cue during the song.

Sunshine on stage

Most people wouldn't think that a musical with the name of "Little Mary Sunshine" could turn out to be as enjoyable and comical as it was. The setting was a small hotel in the mountains underneath the Colorado sky, featuring rangers, Indians and Little Mary Sunshine herself to bring the production to life.

The musical was presented on three consecutive evenings and one afternoon matinee. The crowds were receptive and enjoyed the show, which in Director John Scannell's words, "Reflected my own outlandish sense of humor. It was frivolous and funny and was chosen partly because it was such a lighthearted contrast to last year's serious musical."

Junior Mary Ann Lamb did an outstanding job in the eyes of the director and cast. The stage and lighting crews put forth their best efforts and the cast and director all worked together to present a "marvelous production," commented Mr. Scannell, who added, "and finally they put it all together."

1. Seniors Graeme Atkey and Debbie Flood reminisce about their past experiences in Vienna.
2. Senior Jim Keller commands Sophomore Kirk Parce to be brave and take over the troops.
3. Senior Debbie Flood reprimands Little Mary Sunshine, played by Senior Alex McLennan.
4. Giving advice to the girls from the Eastchester Finishing School is Senior Graeme Atkey.
5. From the left, Sophomores Amy Harper and Jan Church, and Juniors Megan Sutton and Jennifer Vadino pose as innocent young maidens.
6. A friendly Indian, Junior Jeff Allison, is puzzled by the strange turn of events.
7. Disguised as Indians, Senior Wendy Kelling and Sophomore Kirk Parce accidentally meet up with Yellow Feather (Junior Mike Luchino), an unfriendly Indian.
8. Seniors Alex McLennan and Jim Keller touch the hearts of the audience in this scene.
9. Junior Todd Henry sneaks a kiss from Naughty Nancy, played by Senior Wendy Kelling.

Special Aides work for the community

Every Wednesday a small group of students and an instructor devoted their spare time after school to Bellevue Terrace Nursing Home. This group was of course, Special Aids.

Special Aids was made up of 15 students and Ms. Ginger Anderson, club adviser. This service club devoted its time to community services, helping the residents of Bellevue Terrace by organizing activities for the residents.

Activities included pottery and swimming sessions, an Easter party and a picnic at Woodland Park. Other events included a Christmas party at Interlake Manor in which all four of the district schools attended, an all city party and a spring convention at Providence Heights. The Special Aids are financially assisted by the Kiwanis Club who make many of their activities possible.

Ms. Anderson commented, "All the students are unselfish and have developed many new ideas, they are all fun to work with."

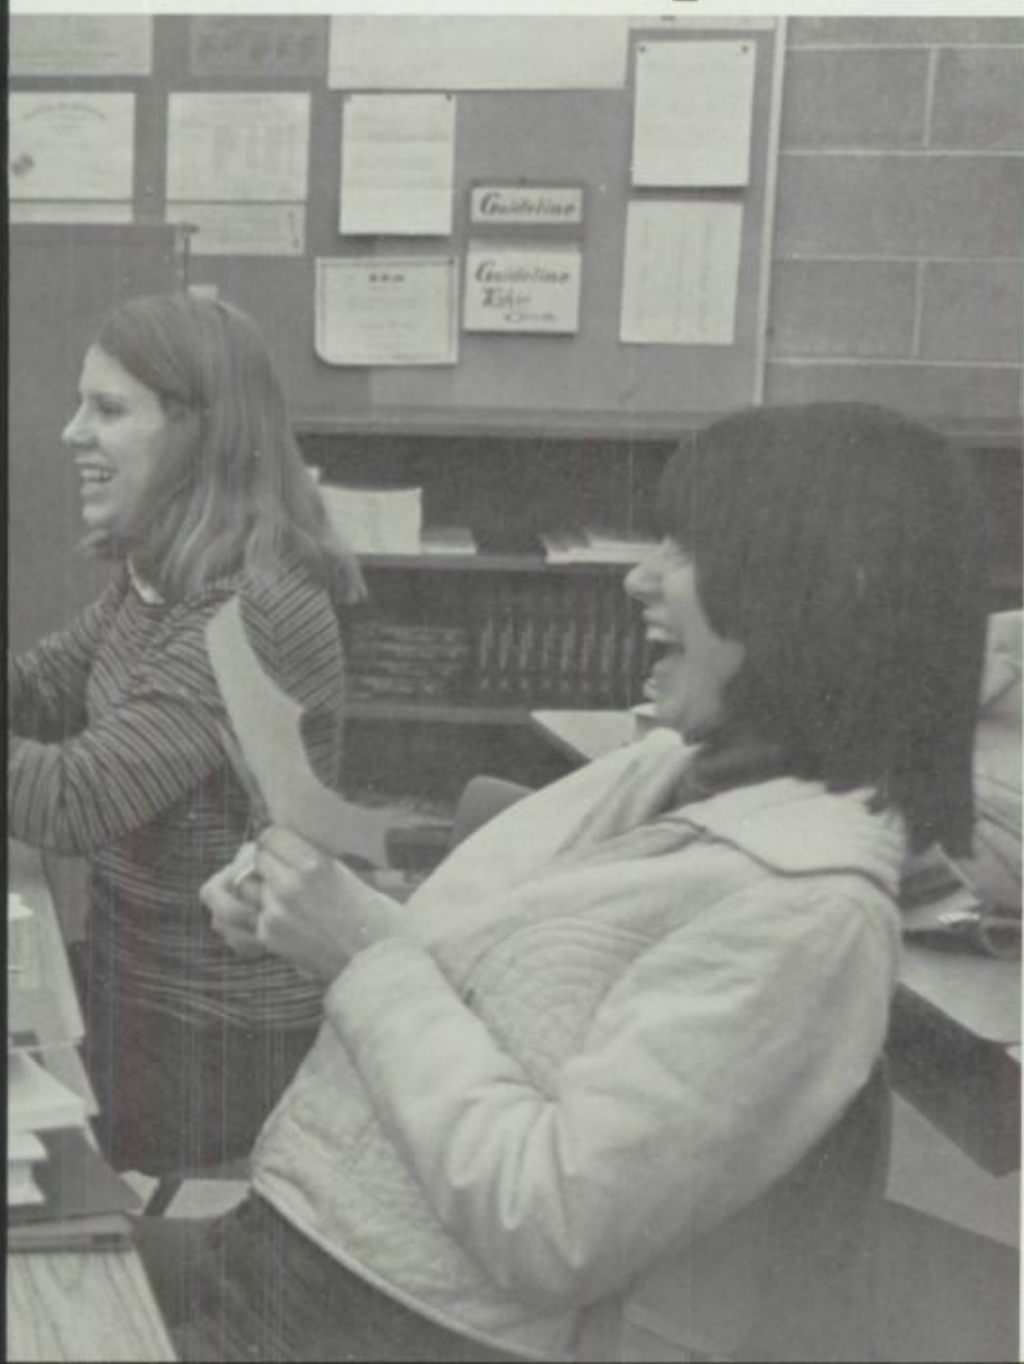

1. Senior Stacey Box cuts out valentines as one of the many Special Aides projects.
2. Senior Diane Coburn designs valentines for the residents at Bellevue Terrace Nursing Home.
3. As one of their activities, the Special Aides held a picnic at Woodland Park.
4. Adviser Ms. Ginger Anderson expresses her ideas at an after school meeting.
5. Seniors Barbara Swisher, Stacey Box, Katey Clark and Cathy Riddlesberger discuss up coming activities.
6. Senior Katey Clark smiles for the camera before the beginning of another meeting.

Stu-Co reaches toward high goals

Adjusting budgets to new state funding requirements, recruiting students to serve on the Heads Up Advisory board and organizing a speaker's bureau were just a small portion of the activities that happened within Student Council this year.

Other Stu-Co accomplishments were landscaping the school grounds, relocating the smoking area, creating an assembly committee, organizing Homecoming and selling tickets for the PTSA Bazaar.

Among Stu-Co's first chores was to appoint a new President. Former President Lanny Barnecut went to Brazil as a foreign exchange student so he had to resign his elected office. Vice-President John Davis assumed the top office and Senior Dick Crowley was elected to fill the vice-presidency vacancy. Other Stu-Co officers were Connie Rolie, secretary; Arun Kaphi, treasurer; and Gregg Thomas, parliamentarian.

1. Senior Mark Hageman and Junior Doug Smith discuss a few important items with each other.
2. Senior Cornelia Sperber, a Stu-Co representative, looks over her notes taken during the meeting.
3. People occasionally are amused by things said at Stu-Co meetings. Christian McAuliffe sure is.
4. Junior Todd Henry studies the opinion of one of the Stu-Co representatives.
5. Senior John Davis, Stu-Co President, presents an important topic to the representatives at a Stu-Co meeting.
6. Mr. James Scott and Ms. Karin Cathey helped Stu-Co maintain law and order during some heated meetings.

SENIORS

Seniors grow with experience

For three years the class of 1977 has worked hard to create and maintain unity among its members, with the main goal of raising enough money to finance an unforgettable Senior Ball.

Starting out as sophomores with roots of apathy and non-interest to build upon, the growth process began. Little money was raised, and participation was sparse.

During our Junior year interest started to bud, and class activities began to come alive. Participation was growing, and attitudes among class members began to change.

As we reached our Senior year the growth process neared its end. Activities such as a rummage sale, a trip to Victoria and dances helped strengthen class unity and give the class a feeling of oneness.

As full grown seniors, we have grown with our experiences, learned from our mistakes, and are now ready to go out and conquer the world.

1. Senior Class Officers: Front Row; Historian Beth Hurter, Secretary Sarita Riley, Treasurer Debbie Freed. Back Row; President Tim Hosking, Vice-President Ken Kurata.

In closing . . .

Yesterday we were dreamers wondering where we were going;
but we will see our dreams
unfold into realities, and the path
will become worn and clear.

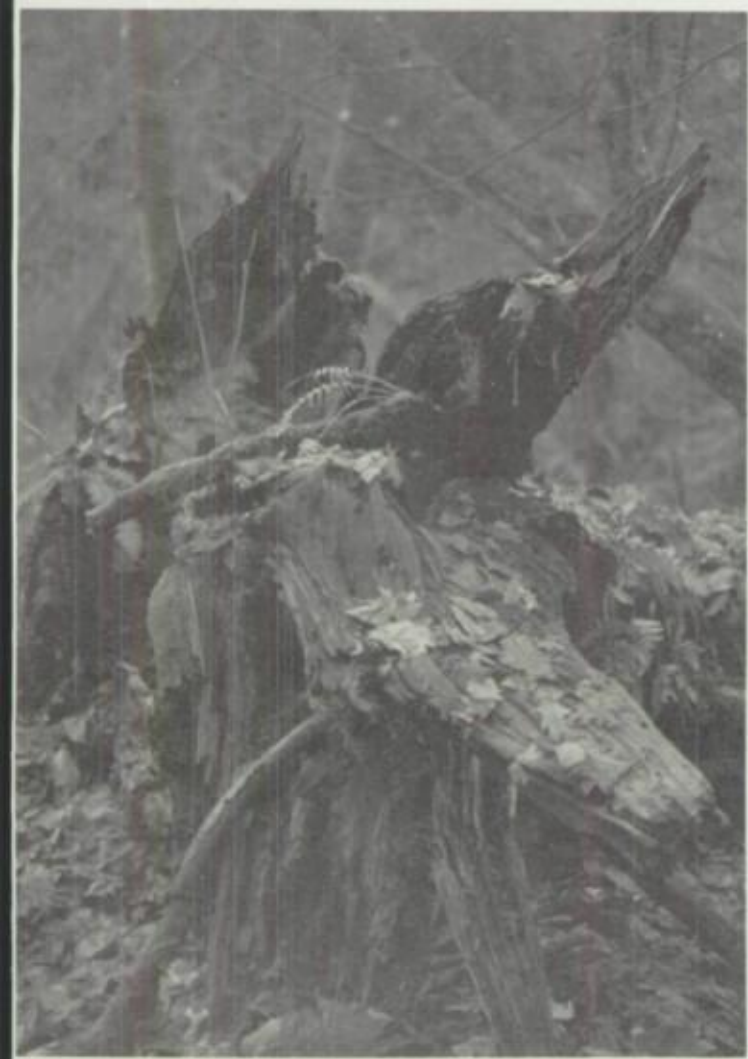

As time passes
we are left with only glimpses
of shadows
that taught us well.

With every door we close a new one shall open;
with every loss
there is a gain.

We see lost currents
crashing against forgotten rocks along a distant stream.

Stand tall and proud—
we have harvested
our experiences;
and through life
will remember those who helped us grow.

'The Accolade'

"Now came the moment for which everyone was waiting. The young man went forward to the lord who was to make him a knight and knelt before him with clasped hands. The lord questioned him somewhat in this wise: 'Why do you wish to be made a knight? Is it that men may show you honor?' On the young man's declaring that he had no such wishes, both knights and ladies united in arming him. The golden spurs came first, then the other pieces of armor, and last of all the sword. The lord then gave him the accolade, sometimes a light touch on the shoulder or the nape of the neck, and sometimes a hearty blow with the hand or even the clenched fist. This was followed by the charge to be brave, ready, and loyal . . . So it was . . . in the ceremony of making a knight . . ." From Tappan, When Knights Were Bold.
